EDITORIAL FOREWORD

ORGANIZED religion in the United States is an important national cultural phenomenon. It touches a majority of the nation's citizens by way of the intimate contacts of vows, covenantal obligations and allegiances. It occupies the most valuable corners in cities and towns with its parish houses, its churches and its cathedrals. Its investments bulk largely in the census calculations of national assets and properties. Its working—in the training of the young, the care of dependents (orphanages, homes and the like), its care of the sick (hospitals, dispensaries, etc.), and its work for defectives and delinquents as well as for the underprivileged, in institutional and private arrangements, has always been on a large scale.

The census of religious bodies, taken at intervals of ten years (the last in 1926) provides a governmental survey of this part of the nation's forces. In between census periods there has been no adequate check-up on the advance (or retrogression) of organized religion. The Christian Herald has made and presented an annual collection of membership statistics for a good many years. The Rev. H. K. Carroll, who conducted the first governmental census of religious bodies, edited these annual presentations. He has been succeeded by the Rev. G. L. Kieffer.

The United Stewardship Council, through its secretary, Harry S. Myers, has collected the giving statistics of the (at present) 25 bodies which coöperate in the Council. These and other available though scattered statistical sources are drawn upon for the convenience of readers of the YEARBOOK. The 1933 edition made an effort to offer the beginnings of authoritative annual statistics to which editors, publicists, students, executives and the public generally might find easy access.

This effort is continued in the present 1935 edition. Basic tables are set up and authentic reports are incorporated with the hope that they may be important enough to warrant not the present biennial issue of a YEARBOOK but possibly an annual one.

The directory of religious bodies, especially through the check list on pages 110-15, should give publicists and others a quick understanding of the complex denominational or sectarian relationships in the organized religion of the United States. The somewhat sketchy way in which important religious groups are referred to in common parlance makes correct identification difficult. The directory with its cross-references, its tabloid description, and especially with its accompanying charts of family connections, should help those who have need of information for correct designation and understanding to find very quickly what they need to know.

The hope of the editor is that the presentations in this volume will make the YEARBOOK indispensable in newspaper offices, in reference libraries and on the desks of all workers in the religious and the philanthropic fields.

The discussions of the trends or records in various areas with which the preaching, the teaching or the leadership of the churches are concerned, have been provided by experts in their fields. The finest spirit of coöperation from Roman Catholic, Jewish and Protestant groups has been enjoyed and is herewith gratefully acknowledged by the editor.

SECTION I

THE STATISTICAL SECTION

A New Approach. Inasmuch as the YEARBOOK is meant to be a reference book on organized religion in the United States and therefore primarily a source of information on the obvious (or statistical) facts concerning churches and synagogues, the statistical section is made the first presentation. In the interests of lucidity and useableness, a new form of presentation has been adopted. Instead of making a confusing effort to be inclusive the tables are limited to a group of the larger bodies with an indication of the statistical modification which needs to be employed to get a quick and almost complete picture of organized religion as a whole.

The New Tables. The census of 1926 listed about 212 different religious bodies. All had to be treated alike, of course, by governmental authorities and this treatment resulted in two very bulky volumes of reports and comprehensive tabulations which were endless and confusing. The tables herewith provided present the reports of forty-nine or fifty religious bodies, all having at least 50,000 members 13 years of age or over. These include as much as 97.3 per cent of the adult members of churches and synagogues throughout the nation. The other 162 or more bodies include only 2.7 per cent.

The Controlling Group. For statistical purposes the forty-nine or fifty religious bodies through their reportings present the statistical picture with sufficient accuracy and completeness to make it far wiser to lump all other bodies into a miscellaneous category. Indexes or per capita or percentages worked out for ninety-seven per cent of organized religion will be found very little affected by what is reported for two and a half per cent of others.

The Small Bodies. The large number of very small religious bodies make the task of compiling statistics very difficult. In some cases their reporting is very incomplete or it is refused or it is puzzling. Some of these bodies have an importance much more significant than their small membership implies. They conserve traditions or institutionalize ideas or bear witness to something that should not be lost to sight. But from the statistical point of view only they can be subordinated in a group which will make the presentation or use of the statistics of organized religion simpler and clearer.

Accurate Statistics. The tables which follow are the most accurate so far compiled. The members of the Association of Statisticians of American Religious Bodies have coöperated with the Christian Herald, the United Stewardship Council and the editor of the YEARBOOK to obtain authentic and reliable figures. For check-up purposes the government statistics from the 1926 census reports have been supplied, worked over into the form adopted for the YEARBOOK tables.

NOTES ON MEMBERSHIP STATISTICS

Source. The membership statistics reported on the following page are taken without change from the tables in the June, 1934, Christian Herald presentation as compiled by Dr. G. L. Kieffer. They are checked with the government figures as reported in the 1926 Religious Census.

Comprehensiveness. The tables present the most complete record of the membership in the organized religious bodies in the United States, available. The fifty bodies reported in detail comprise 97.3 per cent of all reported membership (13 years of age and over). Something like 160 bodies, more or less, register only 2.7 per cent of the total membership reported. They are included in the entry "All Other Bodies."

Accuracy. It will be noted that the Church of Christ Scientist, the Free Will Baptists, the Churches of Christ and Jewish Congregations are reported as in the census of 1926. No later figures are available. The Eastern Orthodox Churches report in round numbers, and there is reason to suspect duplication to some extent in the Holy Eastern Orthodox body, which has been an unsuccessful attempt to combine divisions of Orthodox groupings into one body. The Armenian Church, it is believed, reported some non-U. S. membership. The colored bodies (National Baptist Convention and Church of God in Christ) base their reports on estimates as possibly one or two others do. On the whole, however, the statistics under- rather than overstate membership of religious bodies.

Growth. The apparent growth in membership (in whatever way reported) from 1926 to 1933, was 5,911,736 gross, or at an average rate of 844,533 a year, 15.8 per cent for seven years, or 2.2 per cent per year. If the percentages of child membership are applied to the first column, the total (adult) membership in 1926 proves to have been 43,452,957. Compared with the 1933 report, 48,563,378, this figure would suggest an increase in adult membership of 5,110,421, or 11.7 per cent for seven years, or at the rate of 1.67 per cent average per year.

Changes. The statistics in these tables are given separately for the Reformed Church in the U. S. and the Evangelical Synod of N. A. These two bodies united during the course of the year 1934 and will hereafter be reported under the title The Evangelical and Reformed Church. Corrections in the next tabulation of the Christian Herald will probably eliminate one or two other bodies from this standard list but may add others which find it possible to report more than 50,000 adult members.

CHART OF CHURCH YEARS

(As reported to the United Stewardship Council, illustrating the difficulty of getting up-to-date figures at any year-end and total figures for any definite period.)

THE CHURCH DEBT SITUATION

The "Bankruptcy" of the Churches. A study was made in the autumn of 1934 under the auspices of one of the committees of the Religion and Welfare Recovery Movement, which unexpectedly exposed the unsoundness of the charges which had been made in some magazine articles that churches throughout the nation were going bankrupt. It was discovered that indebtedness against the churches was a small percentage of their valuation and bore a very favorable relationship to the charges against both business concerns and homes.

The Census Presentation. The most authoritative figures as to indebtedness of churches are found in the census of 1926 tables. A few religious bodies report indebtedness in their annual statistics, many do not. The government obtained the figures from all. These figures are reproduced for study by those interested, on the preceding page. They were collected in 1926 and antedate the boom year of 1929 which recorded a great expansion in building enterprises among the churches but also a tide of pay-up campaigns on buildings erected since the World War.

The Situation in 1926. The percentages in the tables are extraordinarily low for some of the more substantial religious bodies. They are averages, of course, covering the collected reports, in every case, of thousands of churches. Because they are averages they need to be handled with caution. They suggest, however, a remarkably sound financial situation in the larger and more important Protestant bodies. If the denominational assets were security for loans to individual churches—as they are for example in the Roman Catholic Church—the question might be asked in all seriousness whether the index of indebtedness is sufficiently high to assure the proper generational adjustment of church property to the needs of its oncoming constituency. Business enterprises and even home-building and home-provision have much higher indexes of indebtedness.

The Index of Solvency. It is perhaps necessary to use something else beside averages to arrive at some understanding of the solvency of church enterprises. The mode rather than the average, the frequency of proper adjustment of property values, debt service and indebtedness itself, would govern the estimate of the solvency of organized religion. There is no reason to believe that the other great religious bodies will show less solvency than the Roman Catholic Church whose index of solvency (with the whole enterprise as credit behind the credit of any unit) is so extraordinarily low (15.5 per cent).

The Character of Church Indebtedness. Loans to church groups are of course character loans. Their basis must be the integrity, honesty and character of church members as well as the traditions, the future and the solidity of their organization. Church property cannot be considered collateral that will provide a quick turnover in case of difficulties. Loans made on any such expectation appear like poor business. The character of church members is the best asset on which, not short-term, but long-term business can be projected with a minimum of risk. Of course churches should have the same if not more consideration in the refunding or refinancing of their indebtednesses that business enterprises and home owners have had. Only in exceptional situations where character has not been taken into due consideration is default or repudiation possible.

The above table, based on the United Stewardship Council figures for 1933 (for some bodies also a part of 1934), shows the relation in two different forms between the amount of money spent on self (current expenses) and on others (denominational benevolences). The first column shows in percentage form what proportion of total giving is for others (denominational benevolences).

THE RELIGIOUS BODY DIRECTORY

The Presentation. The 212 religious bodies which are noted in the government census of 1926 appear with some exceptions in the following directory in a new arrangement which is intended to eliminate as much confusion as possible and to provide an intelligible and useable form of presentation. Forty-nine or fifty religious bodies report memberships in excess of 50,000 adults (those at least 13 years of age or over). They include all the well-known bodies whose officials and affairs receive attention in the news of the day and whose organizational arrangements are desirable to have within reach for reference purposes.

The First Section. These larger bodies are presented first in an alphabetical sequence beginning with the Canadian body which recently united with the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America in an affiliative relationship of some significance. Then follow the Catholic larger bodies, the Eastern Orthodox, the Eastern Separated, the Jewish and the Protestant (and other) bodies. Within these sections the alphabetical arrangement also prevails based, however, on the commonly used designations of the larger groups rather than on their corporate or official names, e. g., Friends, rather than the official title, Society of Friends. In this section fuller particulars are supplied as to officers, organizations and periodicals than is possible in the second section.

The Second Section. This section is devoted to the briefer presentation of the bodies reporting less than 50,000 adult members. There are some omissions because of withheld coöperation or lack of information. Many of these smaller bodies enshrine traditions or principles of great historical or religious significance. Others are the expression of personal leaderships, racial relationships, protest-movements of many different sorts or historical deposits of more or less importance. The arrangement followed in this section is by size of reported membership with no implication that the size represents the religious importance of any unit. The reports in each case, made by a responsible officer or taken from the government census, are from the annual collection made for the Christian Herald, by the Rev. G. L. Kieffer, president of the Association of Statisticians of American Religious Bodies, and published in June, 1934.

Perspective. The arrangement used in the last edition of the YEAR-BOOK (1933) was based on family connection, the Methodists together, the Baptists, etc. This arrangement presented one sort of a picture of organized religion. The arrangement adopted for this edition presents another picture. Future editions of the YEARBOOK will doubtless provide other arrangements so that in the course of time the student may have available different approaches to an understanding of what seems to many a bewildering confusion of Protestant and other religious groups.

Interpretation. The confusion referred to comes in part from the overlapping or but slightly differentiated names which are in use or from the differences in belief or organization often apparently slight which have led to separations. For the general public it seems simpler to present the main bodies of organized religion as fully as possible and provide as brief and compact a presentation as possible for the smaller groups. Some of these groups are smaller than a sturdy single congregation in the larger units and might have trouble in presenting a "national" organization in the proper sense of the word. Independency and separatism are cherished traits in some sections of Protestantism and might logically present several thousand "religious bodies" instead of the 212 the census enumerates.

Orientation. The very brief descriptions of religious bodies, intended to be sufficient to identify them to the casual reader, have been greatly welcomed in spite of their obvious limitations and have received the approval and emendations of the responsible officers of the respective bodies.

Charts. The charts that were presented for the first time in the 1933 edition of the YEARBOOK were received with great interest and widely used in denominational presentations and in historical studies. A new set embodying important corrections and suggestions and bringing the charts up to date has been provided. Reference to these charts will give the quickest identification of a body, its family connections and its historical perspective.

Check List. Attention is called to the check list found on pages 110-15, which gives not only the formal or official names of religious bodies but their unofficial or popular designations. The editor regrets that the limitations of space in this edition (and its lowered price) prevented the inclusion of the lists of educational institutions of which organized religion in all its forms can boast. These will be found in the 1933 edition. A number of changes have occurred in the presidencies of these institutions but on the whole the lists in the 1933 edition will give very desirable information as of 1935. Another change is noted in check lists. The long list of bishops of the Episcopal bodies have been transferred from their former place under the bodies to a separate list where all will be found listed together for convenience in reference.

BAPTIST WORLD ALLIANCE

OFFICERS: Pres., Rev. George W. Truett, Dallas, Tex.; Hon. Assoc. Sec., Pres. C. D. Gray, Bates College, Lewiston, Me.; Gen. Sec., Rev. J. H. Rushbrooke, 4 Southampton Row, London, Eng.

The Baptist World Alliance includes Baptists from every country in the world where there are Baptists. The organization holds its meetings once in five years. It is purely advisory in its relation to the Baptist churches. It has no authority over its members. Its chief purpose is to discuss the great themes which are of common interest to the great Baptist family of the world. There is an executive committee with branches in the United States, the British Isles and elsewhere.

INTERNATIONAL CONGREGATIONAL COUNCIL

OFFICER: Moderator, Rev. J. D. Jones; Office, 287 Fourth Ave., New York, N. Y.

The first International Congregational Council was held in London in 1891. It was intended to hold meetings in ten-year periods but this has not been quite the history. Councils have been held in 1899 (Boston), 1908 (Edinburgh), 1920 (Boston, and 1930 (Bournemouth, Eng.). The Council organization between sessions consists of an Interim Committee of 15 members appointed by the Congregational organizations in the United States, British Isles, Australia, Canada and South Africa. The number of official delegates is fixed at 400, of which 150 each are credited to the United States and the British Isles, and 100 to the rest of the world.

The Presbyterian and Reformed Churches throughout the world, having essentially the same creedal basis and similar ecclesiastical organization, for purposes of fellowship and conference have organized a world alliance. There is a general council in which all are represented and which meets every four years. There are also an Eastern and a Western section which meet separately at the convenience of their constituent bodies.

II. CATHOLIC BODIES

THE ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH

The largest single body of Christians in the U. S. and under the spiritual leadership of His Holiness, Pope Pius XI. This body dates back to the priests who accompanied Columbus on his second voyage to the New World. A settlement, later discontinued, was made at St. Augustine, Fla. The continuous history of this Church in the Colonies began at St. Mary's, in Maryland, in 1634. The membership was reported in the 1934 CH tables to be 20,199,594 gross and 14,503,309 aged 13 years and over [C., page 1254]

Owing to limitations of space very incomplete data for this body can be presented. The following information has been furnished by F. B. Eddy, editor of the Official Catholic Directory. Reference to this valuable and complete volume will provide adequate information.

Head of the Church

His Holiness the Pope, Bishop of Rome and Vicar of Jesus Christ, Successor of St. Peter, Prince of the Apostles, Supreme Pontiff of the Universal Church, Patriarch of the West, Primate of Italy, Archbishop and Metropolitan of the Roman Province, Sovereign of the Temporal Dominions of the Holy Roman Church and Sovereign of Vatican City.

POLISH NATIONAL CATHOLIC CHURCH OF AMERICA

After a long period of dissatisfaction in many Polish Catholic parishes with Roman administration this body was organized in 1904. The membership reported in the CH 1934 tables (an old report) was 99,550 gross and 68,690, 12 years of age and over.

III. EASTERN ORTHODOX BODIES

GREEK ORTHODOX CHURCH (HELLENIC)

Greek-speaking Orthodox Christians have had scattered parishes in the United States for the last seventy years under the jurisdiction of the Metropolitan of Athens and later of the Patriarchate of Constantinople. The political changes in Europe were reflected in this country and brought difficulties to the Church. In 1931 a general convention was held in New York City, under the presidency of Archbishop Athenagoras which brought a large measure of unity and order. The membership reported in the 1934 CH tables was 289,000 gross and 279,000, 13 years of age and over.

General Organization

Convention of the Greek Archdiocese of North and South America, biennial (Next meeting, 1935)

Headquarters: 273 Elm St., Astoria, N. Y.

RUSSIAN ORTHODOX CHURCH

The Russian Orthodox Church entered Alaska in 1792. In 1872 its headquarters were moved to San Francisco and in 1905 to New York. All Orthodox churches were under its jurisdiction, irrespective of language, until the Revolution in Russia during the World War. The jurisdictional situation since that time has been confused and has frequently changed. The membership reported in the 1934 CH tables (an old report) was 320,000 gross and 226,240, 13 years of age and over.

HOLY EASTERN ORTHODOX CATHOLIC AND APOSTOLIC CHURCH IN N. A.

This body was organized in 1927. It was an attempt to gather into one American Orthodox Church the adherents of the Eastern Orthodox Church now separated into at least seven major racial or national groups. ## NORTHERN BAPTIST CONVENTION

The very loose early connections of Baptists, inherent in their independency, prevented the formation of any general organization until in 1814 a General Missionary Convention was organized to permit Baptists to express themselves in terms of missionary activities. In 1845 the state conventions in the South withdrew from the General Convention to organize a Southern Baptist Convention. In 1907 a Northern Convention was organized, a delegated body, under whose direction the many agencies of Baptists in the North and West now operate. The membership was reported in the 1934 CH tables as 1,485,422 gross and 1,434,918, 13 years of age and over. [C., page 85]

CHURCHES OF CHRIST

A large group developed within the body of the Disciples of Christ, at first reported with the Disciples but in 1906 reported separately. They are opposed to church societies with a money basis, deplore human creeds and endeavor to follow the example of the primitive Church. Their membership was reported in the census of 1926 as 433,714. No later reports are available. [C., page 394]

THE PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL CHURCH

This body entered the colonies with the earliest settlers (Jamestown, Va., 1607), as the Church of England. It became autonomous and adopted its present name in 1789. The membership reported in the 1934 CH tables was 1,876,390 gross and 1,384,776, aged 13 years and over. The number of communicants was reported as 1,286,888. [C., page 1196]

METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH

A period of agitation over lay representation in conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church from 1821 to 1830 led to the formation of the Methodist Protestant body. It has no bishops or presiding elders. In other respects its polity is that of the M. E. Church. The membership reported in the 1934 CH tables was 192,447 gross and 178,783, aged 13 years and over. ## CUMBERLAND PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

In 1806 a presbytery (Cumberland in Kentucky) of the Presbyterian Church was dissolved by its synod on account of its attitude toward revivalism. Members of the presbytery organized an independent body in 1810 which became the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. This body reunited with the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., in 1906, but a minority continued the Cumberland Presbyterian Church as herewith. The membership reported in the 1934 CH tables was 69,516 gross and 65,693, aged 13 years and over. ## DIRECTORY OF RELIGIOUS BODIES

SECOND SECTION

This section includes all bodies so far as reported in the Census of 1926 list (Religious Bodies, 1926, Vol. II) or in the Christian Herald tables of church membership, July, 1934, which have less than fifty thousand members, 18 years of age and over.

The entries are arranged in the order of their size as reported in the Christian Herald, the size referring to membership of persons thirteen years of age and over. The use of this net membership eliminates the factor of child membership or baptized membership variously reported on by different bodies.

The use of this arrangement does not indicate that the importance or significance of any religious body is believed to be shown by the size of its reported membership. It is only one way of presenting a picture of organized religion in the U. S. Future editions of the Yearbook will probably employ other groupings.

The Christian Herald tables presented a number of new religious bodies. Most of these reported comparatively small memberships, hardly large enough to justify a national organization or to suggest inclusion in a general list.

[Consult the check list of religious bodies on pages 110-15]

REGULAR BAPTISTS

THE PROTESTANT FIELD

General. The trends and the records of the years 1933 and 1934 for Protestantism will be found in the series of articles hereafter by those best acquainted with what has been going on in the various areas of church activities. The year 1934 will perhaps stand out because of the deep concern of organized religion with the development of social thought and action. The plans discussed in administration circles in the national Capital have commanded the keen interest of churchmen and have been brought to the attention of the numerous church convocations which were called in session during the year.

Recovery. There were signs everywhere that the programs of the churches were being reappraised with an eye to increasing support. In many bodies the tide of contributions toward denominational benevolences turned and began to rise. In others the recession movement was arrested and a better psychology was reported. In the autumn of 1934 a Religion and Welfare Recovery movement was launched in New York City under the auspices of the Golden Rule Foundation. This movement was hastily developed but commanded a good deal of attention and received considerable publicity. Stress was laid on church attendance and much newspaper space was obtained for the encouraging of a return of people to their churches.

Church Attendance. There were reports by competent observers of a larger average of church attendance in many parts of the country. Special religious gatherings, especially those of an undenominational or interdenominational character were increasingly attractive to crowds. This was especially true of Lenten services, of Christmas and Easter sunrise and other services.

The Groups. The Oxford Groups, under the direction of Frank Buchman, continued their program of visitation of large centers, with large public meetings in leading hotels and house party gatherings for discussion meetings.

Missionary Conferences in 1933. Year before last an extraordinary interest was manifested in a series of missionary conferences which were set up in the spring and fall in a great many centers throughout the country. The chief speaker at these conferences was Rev. E. Stanley Jones, assisted especially by Dr. Sam Higginbottom and Dr. Carol Chen. About three quarters of a million people turned out for these meetings, many of which filled the largest auditoriums available. Many missionary board secretaries and missionaries were used in the incidental meetings and conferences which were planned in connection with the larger gatherings.

Meetings of Religious Bodies.

An unusually large number of official and national meetings were scheduled for 1934. Many bodies had their annual meetings, others had their biennial gatherings. One had its triennial and another its quadrennial session. Nearly every body found its agenda concerned with discussions of the social implications of religion and to some extent also with the reorganization of its administrative agencies. The attitude of the churches toward war and peace was especially debated.

The Union of Evangelical and Reformed Churches. An outstanding event of 1934 was the union of the Evangelical Synod and the Reformed Church in the United States. This took place in Cleveland, Ohio. The General Synod of the Reformed Church met on June 26 in the Eighth Reformed Church. The Evangelical Synod met in the Zion Evangelical Church. Both bodies met on the threshold of Zion Church, joined in a processional which then filled the church to overflowing. President Christman of the Reformed Church conducted a devotional service while President Press of the Evangelical group presided. A joint resolution presented by the Commission on Union was adopted and the two presidents clasping hands declared the union formally and legally effected. A deeply moving communion service was then observed. The extraordinary feature of this union was its definite avoidance of any preliminary agreements as to constitution, merger of organizations or creedal formulations. All these matters were deliberately left for adjustment after and not before the union was effected. The two bodies have very much the same racial antecedents. The founders of the Reformed Church came from Germany and Switzerland to Philadelphia from 1700 to 1707. The founders of the Evangelical Synod came from Germany to Missouri during the period from 1825 to 1860. Both bodies report about the same number of members. The new General Synod which was set up by the merging resolution did practically no business except to elect officers. It will not meet for further business until 1936. Meanwhile the boards and agencies of both bodies were continued with injunctions to effect the merging of their work and offices as soon as possible.

The Reformed Church in America. The General Synod of the Reformed Church in America met in Grand Rapids, Mich., on June 7, 1934. A skeleton or pro forma session with no business transacted was held in 1933 and another one is scheduled for 1935. The 1934 meeting, however, was a full session. The Rev. John Wesselink of Pella, Ia., was elected President and the Rev. A. L. Warnshuis, Vice-president. There was considerable discussion of economies in administration and some progress in the consolidation of the work of some agencies.

The Protestant Episcopal Church. This body met at Atlantic City, N. J., in triennial session, on Oct. 10, 1934. It was the Fifty-first Convention and drew a very large attendance to its opening meeting in the auditorium. An elaborate chancel arrangement had been erected and before it gathered an audience of 35,000 people. One of the principal subjects for discussion was the budget of the National Council for the conduct of the missionary and benevolence work of the Church. It was reported that there was a heavy debt and much concern about the future. It was finally decided to set the budget at $2,700,000 as a goal and to make the budgets of askings, an emergency schedule, $2,313,115. A report by a special committee to consider national and international relations met with outspoken opposition in both houses of the Convention, from both deputies and bishops and was made more vigorous and liberal by amendments. The report as adopted opposed the blessing of any war by the Church. Reference is made on page 147 to an action on birth-control legislation. Economic and industrial problems were handled in resolutions which were not acceptable to a majority. They were amended in the House of Deputies and stricken out in the House of Bishops. An effort was again made to change the name of the Church but it was defeated after warm and protracted debate. There was some discussion of the value of making the presiding bishop of the Church an archbishop or primate but no action was taken except to relieve the presiding bishop of his responsibility as head of the National Council. The Bishop of Ohio was made the chairman of a committee of five bishops, five presbyters and ten laymen to carry out a forward movement for the reinvigorating of the life of the Church.

The Presbyterian Church, U. S. A. The General Assembly held its annual session at Cleveland, Ohio, electing the Rev. Wm. Chalmers Covert, its moderator. The General Council of the Church presented a very strong report with reference to the action of a group of Presbyterian fundamentalists who had organized an independent board for foreign missions and had attacked the Assembly's Board. The report directed the presbyteries to require their presbyters who were serving as directors to withdraw from this independent board. There was warm debate but the Assembly approved of the report of the Council and ordered this procedure on constitutional grounds. The Board of Foreign Missions was overwhelmingly endorsed by the Assembly. A series of resolutions covering social and economic matters was offered to the Assembly and supported by a liberal group of commissioners and after considerable debate adopted. The resolutions condemned war, supported the rights of conscientious objectors, urged substantial economic changes, condemned unwholesome movies and opposed the liquor traffic. A report was made of progress in investigating the advisability of consolidating the Boards of National Missions and of Christian Education. This report was made in final form later on in the year to the General Council and its recommendation of the consolidation was unanimously approved for reference to the next General Assembly.

The Presbyterian Church, U. S. The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, U. S., the Southern branch of Presbyterianism, was held at Montreat, N. C., in May. It was reported that a large proportion of its commissioners were in attendance for the first time and routine business was the main preoccupation of the Assembly. An attempt at union with the Associate Reformed Presbyterian Church, a smaller group of Presbyterians in the Southern states, was defeated by the action of the smaller body. A number of overtures urging the Church to resume relations with the Federal Council came before the Assembly but the vote against return was decisive.

The Congregational-Christian Churches. The biennial Council of this body was held from June 21-27, at Oberlin, Ohio. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman was elected honorary moderator and the Rev. J. E. Stocking, of St. Louis, Mo., moderator. The outstanding work of the Council, as reported in the press, was the establishment of a Council for Social Action. The proposal had been debated in the denominational press for weeks before the Council. There was some opposition because of Congregational aversion to centralization and the proposed organization appeared to be a new board or agency. But the Council almost unanimously voted its establishment. The Council organized into ten seminars for the study of many questions: peace problems, church attendance and stewardship, the ministry, Christian higher education, missions, the social gospel, economic questions and liquor control, rural life and farm problems, current theological questions, religious education and evangelism, and interracial relations.

The Northern Baptists. The Northern Baptist Convention met at Rochester, N. Y., in May. The principal question before the Convention was the report of a committee of fifteen on matters of reorganization. Annual or biennial sessions, rotation in office, consolidation and unification and methods of raising and distributing money for denominational purposes figured in the report recommendations. Strong resolutions on war, munitions investments, embargoes, conscientious objectors and the signing of non-invasion pledges were passed.

The Disciples of Christ. The Disciples held their 84th convention at Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 16-21, 1934. President B. W. Morehouse, of Drake University, was elected president for 1935. Educational coördination, unified promotion and a new constitution for the United Missionary Society were approved. The convention made a sweeping condemnation of the war system including compulsory military drill, the profit motive in the manufacture and sale of munitions and approved of the rights of conscientious objectors.

The Methodist Episcopal Church, South. This body held its quadrennial session at Jackson, Miss., April 20-May 1. One of the important actions of the session was the making of a college education requisite for entrance into the ministry. Organization and the finances of the Church were much discussed. An attempt to limit the term of bishops was made but defeated and the life tenure retained. The social creed of the churches as adopted by the Federal Council was made the social creed for Southern Methodism with some changes.

The United Presbyterians. The General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church held its annual meeting at Oxford, Ohio, June 20, 1934. The Reverend J. Alvin Orr, of Pittsburgh, Pa., was elected moderator. The principal business was action on a plan of union with the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A. There were many overtures with regard to this plan, and the moderator-elect was a strong opponent. On the second day of this session a vote on the submission of the plan to the presbyteries of the Church was obtained. After a sharp debate the opponents of submission won by a vote of 123 to 113. After the disposal of this matter, conservative attitudes were taken on social questions as presented. A committee was appointed to study the work of the boards and possible changes in organization or methods.

The Evangelical Church. The Evangelical Church held its thirty-first Conference on October 4, at Akron, Ohio. Sessions are quadrennial, the next meeting being fixed for Johnstown, Pa., in 1938. Some progress was made toward a proposed union with the United Brethren in Christ. It was voted to continue negotiations during the quadrennium. The publishing houses of this body were consolidated into the present plant at Harrisburg, Pa.

The United Lutheran Church. The United Lutheran Church held its biennial convention at Savannah, Ga., October 17-24, 1934. The Reverend F. H. Knubel was elected president. He was first chosen to preside in 1918 and has been reelected by eight successive conventions. The outstanding business of the convention was the consideration of unity for the somewhat divided groups of Lutherans. The convention adopted a strong declaration in favor of negotiations with other Lutheran synods for unity of influence, and appointed a commission to conduct discussions. Fraternal delegates from other Lutheran bodies were most cordially received and the interchange of fraternal good wishes greeted with enthusiasm. An interesting feature of the convention was a formal visit to Ebenezer, Ga., where in 1741, German Salzburger immigrants had settled and built a church. The convention went on record as favoring a fixed date for Easter.

THE ROMAN CATHOLIC FIELD

CHARLES A. McMAHON

Editor of Catholic Action

The Year 1934. During the year 1934, the Catholic Church has given evidence in most countries of her divine life and mission. Though passing through severe trials and stress in some lands, she has continued to make steady progress in others. She has extended her influence and contributed in a marked degree not only to the moral good of nations but to the work of their social regeneration and temporal well-being.

Catholic Action. It is the desire of the Holy Father, Pope Pius XI, to see the work of Catholic Action extended and organized in every land. Its prime purpose is to bring about a more deeply religious and moral concept of life in the heart of every individual and through the healthy religious outlook thus created and the more vigorous practice of religion engendered to have the individual see reflected in the world around him a truly Christian spirit and practice, resulting in widespread justice, charity, fair dealing and good living.

Catholic Action in the U. S. The National Catholic Welfare Conference is one of the forms through which it is sought to further the ends of Catholic Action in the United States. The Conference seeks to coordinate the work of Catholic organizations and individuals and give intelligent expression to their work through the National Councils of Catholic Men and Women which form the Department of Lay Organizations of the Conference.

The National Council of Catholic Men. During the past twelve months 736 additional organizations became affiliated with the Council, bringing its affiliated units to more than fifteen hundred. One of the Council's most characteristic and best known undertakings is the Catholic Radio Hour broadcast each Sunday over 55 stations through a nation-wide network of the National Broadcasting Company.

The National Council of Catholic Women. This Council extended its organization through three new diocesan councils and 327 affiliated bodies. It now includes nearly sixty diocesan councils, 17 national organizations, 6 state organizations and over 2,000 local organizations. The Council has carried on the National Catholic School of Social Service at Washington. It has also been active in cooperation with the Rural Life Bureau of the Social Action Department of the N. C. W. Conference in promoting religious vacation schools reaching a quarter of a million children in rural areas. The 14th annual convention of the Council was held in Washington, D. C., in 1934, attended by some hundreds of delegates and addressed among other notable persons by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Catholic Social Teaching. The Social Action Department of the N. C. W. Conference continued to expound the principles of the papal encyclicals Rerum Novarum (issued by Pope Leo XIII, May 15, 1891) and Quadragesimo Anno—"Forty Years After"—(issued by Pope Pius XI, May 15, 1931). Through this Department 83,000 books and pamphlets were distributed, setting forth the Church's teaching in the problems of industry, various social questions, international relations, rural welfare, civic life, the family and Catholic Action generally. Other conference departments distributed some 90,000 pamphlets dealing with a wide variety of subjects. Seven regional meetings of the Catholic Conference on Industrial Problems were held during the year as were other regional meetings of the Catholic Association for International Peace and the Catholic Rural Life Conference. At the latter it was reported that rural life bureaus had been established in 32 dioceses with ten others being organized. In some 40 dioceses programs of Catholic rural activities had been undertaken in an organized way. In coöperation with other departments of the N. C. W. Conference, a program of Catholic Action was carried out in 93 colleges, 51 seminaries and 35 Newman Clubs.

Catholic Education. There are now more than two and a half million students in Catholic elementary, secondary and normal schools and in seminaries and universities. There are 22 universities, 117 senior colleges and 33 junior colleges in which are enrolled 100,000 students. In 178 seminaries are some 20,000 students. All these institutions are staffed by 8,500 teachers. A survey made in 1934 showed that providing and operating Catholic elementary and high schools had lifted a large burden of taxation from the shoulders of the American taxpayer. The annual cost of education in Catholic elementary and secondary schools was shown to be $265,810,200 while the funds which would be required to build public schools to accommodate the Catholic school population would be $995,926,861. During the first six months of the year 105 Catholic institutions of higher learning received some $42,000 from the FERA for the aid of students. Extensive programs of adult education through study clubs on social and industrial questions and on international affairs were organized throughout the year, many of them with the coöperation of the N. C. C. Men, the N. C. C. Women and the Education and Social Action Departments of the N. C. W. Conference.

Motion Pictures. The year 1934 saw the formation of an Episcopal Committee on Motion Pictures and the launching of an active and far-reaching campaign against immoral movies. The Legion of Decency came into being "as a permanent protest against everything in the moving picture which is subversive of morality." A permanent organization of the Legion of Decency has been formed in practically every Catholic archdiocese and diocese in the United States. In December the pledge of the Legion was taken by millions of Catholics throughout the country.

Legislation. Concerted action has continued on the part of Catholics, aided by non-Catholics, to combat federal and state legislation seeking to give legal and public sanction to birth control. When birth control bills were introduced in Congress early in 1934, prominent non-Catholic bodies and individuals, including national medical organizations and eminent physicians, united with Catholics to make known their lack of approval and their determined opposition. The Administrative Committee of the N. C. W. Conference set forth, before the Senate Committee on Education and Labor, the inherent right of workingmen to form labor unions and to bargain collectively. The question of allocating radio time and wave lengths to religious and other organizations came before the Federal Communications Commission during the year. Chiefly because of proposals put forward by the Very Rev. John B. Harney, C.S.P., Congress directed the Commission to study a plan giving one-fourth of all broadcasting facilities to educational, religious, agricultural, labor and other non-profit associations.

Catholic Coöperation in National Recovery. Catholics played a prominent part during the year in furthering the purposes of legislation to build again on a sound basis the social and economic life of the nation. In June President Roosevelt appointed the Most Rev. Edward J. Hanna, Archbishop of San Francisco and chairman of the Administrative Committee of the N. C. W. Conference, to be chairman of a Labor Disputes Board of three persons to inquire into and find a solution of the strike of maritime workers on the Pacific Coast. The N. C. W. Conference aided in providing spiritual care for the more than 100,000 Catholics among the 368,000 youths in the more than 1,700 Civilian Conservation Camps to which a large number of Catholic chaplains were appointed. Another important service was the providing of information and advice to religious and welfare agencies and institutions affected by the national recovery program and the obtaining of recognition of charitable as well as educational institutions as having a special status under the NRA. In September the Secretary of the Interior approved the Subsistence Homesteads project sponsored by the Rev. L. G. Ligutti of Granger, Iowa, and allotted $100,000 to that work. The plan had for its object the settling of miners in the coal fields in Dallas and Polk Counties, Iowa, on sites within reach of the mining camps where about 1,600 are located.

The Mexican Situation. In November, the archbishops and bishops of the United States issued a statement deploring the anti-religious tyranny in Mexico. "War on religion," they stated, "has extended beyond national boundaries through organized propaganda in many countries. . . . No upholder of the rights of man and of liberty of conscience can view complacently the exercise of such tyranny even though it be in a country other than our own. . . . The full consequences of the persecution of the church and of Catholics in Mexico can scarcely be foreseen at the present time. They cannot but eventually be very grave." In October the National Conference of Jews and Christians declared: "We are especially concerned at the present juncture over the situation in Mexico where many unprejudiced observers report that in the endeavor to achieve social justice and political reform, religious liberty is being imperilled. . . . We desire to give our moral support to those who labor for freedom of worship there, and to express the anxiety with which we view every threat to liberty of conscience and the freedom of the soul."

Eucharistic Congresses. In Latin-America there was evidence, during 1934, of a resurgence of the Catholic spirit, the most outstanding event being the great International Eucharistic Congress held in Argentina at Buenos Aires, October 10-14, 1934. The Congress brought together more than a million pilgrims from all parts of the world. A distinguished visitor from the U. S. was the Most Rev. John J. Glennon, Archbishop of St. Louis.

Several national congresses were held, notably one in Australia, at Melbourne, attended by more than 500,000 persons and by His Eminence Joseph Cardinal MacRory as Papal Legate. Another, the first in that country, was held in Lithuania. At the annual meeting of the bishops of the United States in November, the Most Rev. Joseph Schrembs, Bishop of Cleveland, was appointed as promoter of the National Eucharistic Congress in the United States. Among other Catholic congresses held during 1934 were the Marian Congress at Portland, Ore.; the Catholic Congress in Berlin; the Regional Assembly of the Catholic Youth of Galicia, Spain, and in Indo-China the first Plenary Council of the Church in that country.

Catholic Statistics. The Catholic Directory for 1934 gave the Catholic population of the United States as 20,322,594, an increase of 54,191 over 1933. There were 18 archbishops and 107 bishops, including titular and auxiliary bishops. The number of priests was given as 29,619. More than 1,500 American priests are on foreign missions. The fund available to the American Board of Catholic Missions was $395,657. For the ten years previous to 1934 Catholics in the United States contributed $9,767,223 to the work of the Propagation of the Faith, about 42 per cent of the total funds contributed. The St. Vincent de Paul Society expended more than $6,000,000 on relief work during the year. Other Catholic charities spent many millions more. The number of Catholic hospitals increased from 641 in 1929 to 649 at the beginning of 1934. Several new Catholic publications were started in 1934, including newspapers in five dioceses.

Anniversaries. The 150th anniversary of the ratification of the Treaty of Paris, ending the War of Independence in 1784, was commemorated by the celebration of Solemn Pontifical Mass, presided over by His Eminence Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, in the Cathedral of SS. Peter and Paul, Philadelphia. The Tercentenary of the Founding of Maryland and the establishing of religious liberty was marked by solemn services, the chief of which was a great demonstration, including a Pontifical High Mass, in Baltimore Stadium, attended by several hundred thousand people.

The Tercentenary of the coming of the first white man, Jean Nicolet, to the great Northwest Territory was also commemorated in the diocese of that region.

Notable Personalities. His Eminence William Cardinal O'Connell celebrated the 50th anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood. His Eminence George Cardinal Mundelein celebrated the 25th anniversary of his consecration as a bishop. The Most Rev. John J. Glennon, Archbishop of St. Louis, marked his 50th anniversary as a priest. Among notable converts to the church in 1934 were Ivar Tidestrom, noted biologist of the U. S. Department of Agriculture; Brig. Gen. Theodore A. Bingham; William Hard, well-known journalist, and the Rev. Barnabas Skihushu, former archimandrite of the Russian Orthodox Church.

THE JEWISH FIELD

HARRY SCHNEIDERMAN

Editor, The American Jewish Yearbook

Hitlerism. Whereas, two years ago, Jewish community life showed the scars of the economic depression, during the past two years, community progress was disturbed, and most profoundly, by the rise of Hitlerism in Germany and its shattering repercussions in the United States. Religious activity, as such, has been pushed into the background, and a great part of the attention of Jews in America has been concentrated chiefly upon steps to succor their brethren in Germany and on the even closer problem of combatting forces which threatened and continue to menace the peace and security of the Jews of the Republic. The events in Germany outraged the conscience of a large part of the population of the United States. The Jews of America were heartened in their dark hour when eminent individuals, either singly or in groups, publicly expressed their condemnation of these events as did church leaders and bodies, associations of lawyers, physicians, and teachers, and legislators in the Federal congress and in the state assemblies and senates.

Nazi Agitation. Developments abroad, however, appear to have set in motion two currents of anti-Jewish agitation. There was, first, the propaganda of Nazi apologists and sympathizers in this country, inspired by the desire to justify the excesses of Nazism in Germany. It was evident that these elements counted upon the existence of latent anti-Jewish prejudice which could be brought to the surface and inflamed into hatred. Agitation with this end in view would, moreover, serve the useful purpose of a smoke screen to conceal other ugly phases of the new régime in Germany, such as the suppression of freedom of speech, of press and of assembly; the loss of rights won by women, the effort to make the Church a department, as it were, of the State; and the threat to world peace inherent in the foreign policy of Nazi Germany.

American Agitation. At the same time, the fact that a country which had always been regarded as in the front rank of intellectual progress had apparently adopted Jew-baiting as a state policy, emboldened other elements of America's population, some of them sincere but misguided, to exploit the same latent prejudice, and, for the first time in American history, Jew-hatred is being used as a demagogic rallying cry by those who are opposed to the policies of the administration. The existing economic depression and the confusing unrest abroad, which have caused so much doubt, bewilderment and perplexity, have unfortunately rendered many Americans susceptible to such agitation which pretends to explain the entire complexus of world affairs with alluring simplicity by offering the ubiquitous Jew as the key to the world enigma. As like attempts have been made at similar times of crisis, the present agitation has available a wealth of literary material including the notorious "Protocols of the Elders of Zion," which the agitators use, often with telling effect. At the same time, ultra-conservatives generally, who look aghast at the changes which are taking place all about them with, to them, alarming rapidity, utilize the same materials to prove that these changes are not coming about naturally but are being foisted upon an unsuspecting world by "the Jews," in fulfillment of a nonexistent fiendishly clever plan.

Organization for Relief. The Jewish community was not altogether unprepared to meet these emergent problems. During the World War, the community had built up the Joint Distribution Committee. Originally, as its name implies, a committee for distributing funds raised by constituent bodies, the Joint Distribution Committee has survived these bodies and now collects as well as distributes funds to relieve distress abroad. A special appeal was at once published for funds to aid agencies in Germany which were created by the Jewish community there to assist the thousands of Jews who were economically uprooted as a result of Nazi persecution. Funds were also required for the aid of thousands who had fled from Germany, a substantial portion of whom are non-Jews. Much has been accomplished already by the Jewish organizations in Germany with the help of funds supplied by the J. D. C. In March, 1934, the American Christian Committee for German Refugees, headed by Dr. S. Parkes Cadman and Dr. Robert A. Ashworth, was formed to arouse "among Protestants and Catholics a sense of responsibility toward the situation of German refugees."

This Committee had been organized at the suggestion of James G. McDonald, who had been appointed by the League of Nations to head up an international High Commission to help refugees, under the control of a Governing Body, consisting of representatives of fifteen countries, including the United States which is represented by Prof. Joseph P. Chamberlain of Columbia University, New York City. The establishment of this High Commission was to a great extent the result of the suggestion of the Joint Consultative Council, established in June, 1933, by the three leading organizations in the United States which deal with matters affecting the civil and religious rights of Jews, namely, the American Jewish Committee, the American Jewish Congress, and the fraternal order B'nai B'rith.

The Dilemma of Protest. In view of the existence of many points of view among American Jews in normal times, it was not surprising that, when the Hitler crisis came, there should be wide differences of opinion as to how it should be met. On the one hand, were those who held the view that vigorous protest on the part of Jews would so arouse public opinion that its pressure would force the Nazi leaders to abandon their anti-Jewish policy. On the other hand, there were those who held the view that while protest on the part of Jews might be defended as an outlet for pent-up indignation, it was indefensible from the point of view of practical politics, because it would have no effect on the population of Germany who would be misinformed about the nature of such protest by the rigidly controlled press, and because such protest would play directly into the hands of the Nazi leaders who would utilize it as a means for intensifying the existing anti-Jewish feeling, created in large measure by Nazi propaganda since 1920. Besides, protests by Jews alone or on their behalf only, would create the impression that Hitlerism was objectionable only for the reason that it is anti-Jewish, and obscure the very important fact that it actually carried the seeds of danger to democracy, freedom, and world peace.

The Boycott. There was also a wide divergence of opinion regarding an anti-Nazi boycott, which quite naturally was advocated almost from the first days of the Nazi régime. Some held a boycott was the only weapon available for combating that régime and that it was the duty of Jews to organize and foster such a movement. There were others, however, who held the same objections to a boycott organized by Jews as had been advanced against protest by Jews, with the further objection that Jews, in Germany as well as in other countries, would be the chief sufferers from the harmful repercussions which invariably attend or follow boycotts.

The Joint Consultative Council. Roughly speaking, these differing points of view were represented, on the one hand, by the American Jewish Congress which actively supported protest demonstrations and the boycott; and, on the other hand, the American Jewish Committee and B'nai B'rith, which have been and continue to be opposed to these procedures. Insistent demands by the Jewish public that the three bodies work together, wherever possible, led to the formation of the Joint Consultative Council already referred to. Through this Council the three bodies interchange information and views, with the object of acting in concert in dealing with the problems presented by the anti-Jewish agitation outlined above. In the work of spreading truthful information about Jews, and in efforts to create a better understanding, in counteraction of this agitation, these Jewish organizations are ably seconded by a large part of the Jewish population, through their congregations and other communal agencies. This work is also earnestly and effectively supported by Christian leaders and organizations who fully appreciate the importance of conserving friendly and harmonious relations as between the citizens of the United States.

Religious Activities. While religious activities as such have been pushed into the background, they have, of course, continued, and signs are not lacking of approaching expansion with the coming of better times. A number of Jewish religious groups coöperate with Christian bodies interested in securing more wholesome motion pictures. In New York City, there was much activity aimed at preventing the "mushroom synagogue" evil, i. e., the temporary synagogues, established during the high holidays in the fall, often for commercial profit. Goodwill activities were also promoted during this period. The "pilgrimage" of Father J. Elliott Ross, the Rev. Everett R. Clinchy and Rabbi Morris Lazzaron, in October, 1933, aroused great interest and sympathy in Jewish circles, as did the celebration, for the first time, of "Brotherhood Day" on April 29, 1934.

Impending Social Change. But the human implications of economic conditions were perhaps the chief preoccupation of Jewish religious leaders as of those of other faiths. Thus the Central Conference of American Rabbis at its convention last June adopted resolutions to combat the rising tide of the war spirit and to promote social and economic justice; and, in July, the Rabbinical Assembly of the Jewish Theological Seminary adopted a resolution opposing both Fascism and Communism, and favoring social change through progressive and democratic means. In December, 1934, the Central Conference of American Rabbis announced a regional conference in January, 1935, to discuss the present social emergency and the formulation of a practical program of social activity for congregations. The fact that Palestine was happily able to absorb a large number of German Jews vastly increased the interest of the American community in the work of upbuilding the Jewish national home there.

THE PRESENT THEOLOGICAL OUTLOOK

DONALD MACKENZIE, D.D.

Professor of Biblical Theology, Princeton Seminary; author of Christianity
"The Paradox of God"

[Dr. Mackenzie states he is conscious that anything he may say on the state of theology in the United States in the last two years is likely to be colored by his own personal outlook. Again it is possible that he may have overlooked or ignored books that to some appear important. With these reservations, he submits the following short statement in good faith as a picture of current theological opinion as he sees the situation through life and books.—EDITOR.]

1. Humanism and Theology.

Not so long ago it looked as if a definite Christian theology—aye, as if a theistic theology of any kind—must retire in intellectual confusion before the rising tide of Humanism. In this respect the theological outlook is becoming clarified and less confused. Two recent volumes may be taken as significant. The first is Dr. John Dewey's A Common Faith, where the voluminous representative of pragmatic humanism expounds his religion. We welcome such books because their vagueness and tenuity of content are their best refutation. Here is a religion without a personal God, or without immortality, a religion based on an ideality that has no metaphysical reality. It is safe to prophesy that this can never become the "common faith" of men. We doubt if it is the real faith of any respectable minority.

Another Humanism. Very different is Dr. Paul Elmer More's A Skeptical Approach to Religion. This is the voice of that gracious, enlightened, classical Humanism to which we owe so much in the way of culture and intellectual enrichment. Here Plato is seen with his face towards the revelation of God in Christ, the Academy entering the Church, bringing gifts and receiving grace. We wish we had evidence that this scholarly temper is on the increase. For this evidence of its existence we are thankful. We hope it is not prejudice to say that the first humanism is moving downwards towards darkness, doubt and negation, the second is moving upwards towards light, sweetness and affirmation. It looks as if the day of humanistic intimidation of Christianity had passed.

2. Theology and Science. America is as eager as it has ever been to seek help for its religious aspirations in the discoveries of physical science. Physical science, of course, can never determine morality or an historical religion like Christianity, but it can remove the crudities of a supposedly religious cosmology, and give us ampler views of the universe. The present situation seems to indicate a greater friendliness and a growing mutual respect between scientist and theologian. A theistic philosophy is more probable from the standpoint of science than it has been for a quarter of a century.

Indeterminism. The most important point in recent scientific speculation bearing on theology was the scientific assertion that indeterminism penetrated to the very roots of physical reality, and consequently that free-will in man was a vera causa to which science could raise no objection. We were never attracted by this, and recent utterances of men like Einstein seem to doubt this scientific indeterminism. Free-will in man is a postulate of the moral consciousness, and does not need the dubious support of physical speculations. It, I think, may be asserted, that the popular game of using scientific discoveries as a battering ram to overthrow the fair edifice of religious faith is becoming stale, just as the equally silly game of vetoing scientific progress by a supposedly religious cosmological revelation is regarded as futile. We would fain hope that this is not a temporary truce but a permanent peace.

3. Theology and Man. One of the most significant trends in recent American theology is the emphasis on the worth of human personality. This has been associated rightly with the honored name of Borden P. Bowne, and is a treasured heritage of the Boston school. Dr. Brightman has made himself heir to this heritage and has given us another book dealing with it, Personality and Religion. In an age of impersonalism it is a welcome emphasis; but most theologians are not convinced by his attempts to find in God an internal intractability over which He has doubtful control. Side by side with this should be read such a book as A. H. Dakin's delightful little volume on Von Huelgel and the Supernatural, and an excellent volume which we welcome as evidence of real theological thinking on the best lines by Robert Leet Patterson, The Conception of God in the Philosophy of Aquinas. Two other books that give some pleasure in the reading, are God and Creation, by John E. Boodin, and W. H. Horton's Realistic Theology, deserving mention.

Thomistic Revival. The Thomistic revival in Catholicism is in some respects as significant as the Barthian revival in Protestantism, as one can see in A. E. Taylor's Faith of a Moralist, which, though not an American book, has been widely read on this side of the Atlantic.

4. Theology and God. A book that has created quite a flutter in some quarters is Dr. Edwin Lewis' A Christian Manifesto. It is significant as a protest against a form of liberalism in Christian thinking that would jettison the verities of the Christian redemptive message as these have been generally accepted by all branches of the Christian Church, and as we have little doubt they are now generally accepted. Of more positive significance, in our opinion, is Dr. Geo. W. Richards' Beyond Fundamentalism and Modernism. Dr. Richards has done signal service here in making Barthianism accessible and intelligible to the American mind.

The translation of such books as Brunner's great work on Mysticism, Barth's Come, Holy Spirit, and Karl Adam's The Son of God, are, we hope, an indication that American theology is getting somewhat tired of the vagaries of psychologism and longing for a better acquaintance with Scripture as the ultimate source of our theological ideas and our Christian life.

Neo-Calvinism. It may safely be said that among the younger students of theology a revived Neo-Calvinism is more popular than it has been in America in a generation, and in our opinion this is a proof of a revived earnestness. God's sovereignty is the fundamental postulate of all theology worthy of the name. We hope this new spirit of earnestness may lead to a fresh theological study of Holy Scripture in the light of present-day knowledge. The book in this department that has given us most pleasure in reading is Dr. Duncan B. Macdonald's Hebrew Literary Genius, which we trust will call students back to a study of Scripture, not as a quarry for critical analysis, but as a revelation of God, and as a redemptive message from God to man.

The Issue. As we see it the issue—the cleavage that divides the modern Christian Church—can be put simply. It is this. Is Jesus Christ the object of our faith and worship, or is he just another Christian? Is he our Divine Redeemer, or is he only the highest type of man? This issue is becoming clearer, and it cuts through the ranks, separating men to the right hand or to the left.

5. Theology and the Present Social Distress. There can be little doubt that men are asking in desperation, What message, if any, from God has the Church for a world that has largely lost its nerve and self-assertiveness? Men in despair are turning to economic panaceas and experiments. Can we assure them of a higher and heavenlier remedy? We have read with interest many volumes of sermons in which this note of earnestness predominates, because we believe that preaching is the theology of the Church-in-action. The books of sermons and articles dealing from the Christian standpoint with the present situation would indicate an unusual vitality of faith in Christ not simply as a prophet, but as Redeemer, as the solution of the prevailing uncertainty.

We would mention Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin's volume on What Men Are Asking, and Dr. Richard Roberts' That Strange Man Upon the Cross as inspiring, and we pay our tribute to many writers and preachers who are valiantly and not without effect bringing the truths of the Gospel to bear upon the ever present needs of men, upon the social distress and the world situation.

While there is much in the present theological outlook to raise misgiving, there is more to make us believe that God is at work. The best of all is that there is a decided trend of wistfulness which looks to God's gracious intervention for deliverance. When the Church begins to pray in earnest, society will be changed and theology will be rejuvenated.

CHURCH UNION AND FEDERATION

SAMUEL MCCREA CAVERT

(Dr. Cavert is the General Secretary of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.)

A New Union. The outstanding development in church union has been the merger of the Reformed Church in the U. S. and the Evangelical Synod of North America in a new body known as the Evangelical and Reformed Church. The union was consummated at a joint meeting held in Cleveland, Ohio, June 26-27, 1934, at which time the united body officially came into being. This merger witnesses a blending, at least to a certain extent, of two major streams which are as old as Protestantism itself, since the Evangelical Synod contributes to the combination a Lutheran element along with the Reformed. The spirit in which the Evangelical and Reformed Church was brought into being is perhaps the most remarkable thing about the development. The two parties to the union have entered upon it in such a spirit of mutual trust that they have not had to define all the terms of formal agreement in advance. They have become a single Church without having yet completed a constitution, without having set up any new doctrinal formulas, and without having decided how to organize the various boards and agencies of what were hitherto two separate bodies. They have consummated the union while leaving it to the future to work out the details in a united fellowship.

Presbyterian Plans. A proposal for the union of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. and the United Presbyterian Church of N. A. was almost unanimously adopted by the former but rejected by the General Assembly of the latter denomination at its meeting held in Oxford, Ohio, in June, 1934. The failure of this plan, which had been under consideration for two years, marks the discontinuance for the present of definite proposals for union within the Presbyterian family.

Methodist Interest. At the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, held in Jackson, Mississippi, beginning April 26, 1934, there was a revival of the discussion for unification of American Methodism. Further impetus was given by the Sesquicentennial Celebration of the beginning of American Methodism, in Baltimore, Maryland, in October, 1934. The fact that the union of Methodism in England was achieved in 1932 has also created favorable influences toward union in this country.

The Douglass Study. The most important contribution to the recent literature of church union has been the volume entitled, "Church Unity Movements in the United States," by H. Paul Douglass, published in 1934, presenting the report of a survey and study carried on under the auspices of the Institute of Social and Religious Research. Special interest attaches to the poll in which more than 20,000 persons, scattered throughout all major denominations expressed their views. Two-thirds of those who participated favored some form of general Protestant union, either federal or organic. Only one-third expressed themselves as satisfied with the denominational system as it now is. While Dr. Douglass recognizes that certain groups have views so widely separated as to make union of all denominations very remote, he concludes that a very large partial union (one which might embrace "nearly three-quarters of the non-Catholic Christians of the United States'") is now practicable so far as the sentiment of the rank and file of the churches is concerned.

Canadian Affiliation. The most significant recent development in American church federation has been the action of the United Church of Canada in becoming affiliated with the Federal Council of Churches in 1933. A chart showing the origins of the United Church is presented on page 32 and the offices and organizations will be found included in the Directory of Religious Bodies.

Local Federations. In the field of federation in state areas noteworthy progress has been made as the result of the joint agreement of the Federal Council and the International Council of Religious Education to further the organization of a single coöperative agency functioning for all the Protestant interests of the state. In seventeen different states such plans, in various stages of development, are now under way.

TRENDS AND TIDES IN EVANGELISM

JESSE M. BADER

(Associate Secretary of the Department of Evangelism, Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.)

The General Trend. The expected revival of religion in the Protestant churches of America did not arrive in 1933 or 1934. There were evidences of a great heart hunger, but nothing like a national religious revival. These two years were not easy ones for the churches. There was, however, evangelistic advance. There was an increase of church membership on the part of all religious bodies with only a few exceptions. The churches experienced the greatest Lenten period since the war in attendance at services and in the number of new members received. In many communities the results amounted to a religious revival.

A Youth Movement. A series of youth conferences was set up in 1934, from January to March in twenty-eight cities. These were two and three days in length and were conducted by teams of about fifteen speakers and discussion leaders. The series grew out of a program worked out by the Federal Council of Churches of Christ and the youth organizations represented in the International Council of Religious Education. The program was built around the motto, "Christian Youth Building a New World," and six areas were visualized: a new individual, a new church, a new home, a new community, a new nation, and a new world.

Church Attendance. Roger Babson was made chairman of a committee five years ago to make a church attendance survey. A careful count has been proceeding in one thousand selected churches every Sunday morning. The results have been checked against the reported resident membership. The figures show that total attendance was about one-third the membership. Mr. Babson has pointed out that there has been an attendance increase of about one per cent a year, but he also indicates that population has increased at about the same rate.

A New Survey Needed. Another study perhaps is needed which will include records of attendance of church members at other services during the week. If this were made, it might give a more encouraging picture. There are doubtless many members who cannot attend on Sunday mornings but are actively interested in the work of the church and attend at other times. Many congregations have been for the first time keeping a careful weekly record of all attendance of their members, and have been setting up plans for a monthly visitation of all absentees. Wherever this has been done, splendid results have followed.

Roman Catholic Attendance. In the releases covering a series of meetings under the auspices of the Golden Rule Foundation, and called the Religious and Welfare Recovery Movement, competent Roman Catholic statistical authorities reported the attendance of members of that body as eighty per cent.

Sunday Evening Services. During the past five years there has been a movement towards dispensing with evening services on Sunday. In some communities this movement has probably been justified, but in others it would be difficult to find sufficient reason.

Conferences. During 1933 and 1934 the Department of Evangelism of the Federal Council held 123 one-day "Spiritual Advance Conferences" which reached over 14,000 ministers and engaged the services of 144 different speakers. These conferences were set up in coöperation with the local councils of churches or with ministerial associations. In February, 1933, in one state alone, Ohio, 45 one-day conferences were held with a total attendance of 5,500 pastors and laymen.

Devotional Life. The first full week of 1933 and of 1934 was observed as a general week of prayer in Protestant churches. A series of prayer topics was prepared as usual. Over 20,000 copies were sent out and in many communities there was united observance of the week. A daily devotional booklet, The Fellowship of Prayer, was promoted by the Federal Council, and 1,250,000 copies distributed in 1933 and 1934. A monthly devotional booklet, Today, prepared by the Board of Christian Education of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., was issued and distributed through more than 50,000 paid subscriptions. In 1935 a special Federal Council edition of this monthly booklet will be circulated beginning with a May issue.

The Radio. The invisible audience at morning devotions increased during the year. Many thousands began each day in prayer and meditation. This increase in interest in a "morning watch" everywhere indicated a widespread spiritual hunger. There was a reported increase in the sale of devotional books and guides for daily religious living.

Denominational Plans. The Methodist Episcopal churches observed their sesquicentennial anniversary in October, 1934, at Baltimore. They outlined plans for the period which will end on May 24, 1938, when the two hundredth anniversary of the "heart warming" experience of John Wesley will be observed. A church-wide Covenant Sunday observance was set for January 6, 1935. As part of the program the local churches were to form Aldersgate Round Table study groups and prayer circles to educate members in the meaning of the message and program of the Christian religion as interpreted by the Methodist movement. Coast to coast conferences were planned by the M. E. Church and the M. E. Church, South, to promote this significant anniversary celebration. The Congregational-Christian Churches, through their Commission on Evangelism, also planned preaching missions on a broad scale in that religious body.

Coöperative Plans. The Federal Council received and adopted a report at its biennial meeting in Dayton, Ohio, in December, 1934, which called for a national preaching mission which would touch all the great centers and which would utilize the most commanding preachers from overseas as well as in the United States. The proposal was heartily welcomed by the representatives of twenty-three religious bodies and was authorized.

TRENDS IN RELIGIOUS EDUCATION IN 1933-1934

F. ERNEST JOHNSON

(The author is executive secretary of the Department of Research and Education, Federal Council of Churches, and Professor of Education in Teachers College, Columbia University.)

The Professional Field. The depression has continued to take its toll of professional service in the religious field and probably religious education in the local church has suffered more than any other staff activity. At the same time, it appears that where a policy of high grade professional work in this field has been well established it tends to maintain itself. The directorship of religious education is regarded as a profession but it cannot be said to be a growing one. The main reliance of those who hope for the improvement of educational work in the church is coming to be placed on the training of the local minister both in theological school and "in service." The overwhelming majority of our Protestant churches have but one minister and only by increased competence and insight on the part of the ministry can sustained development in this field be realized.

Definitions. The confusion concerning this entire subject and the difficulty of marking out definite lines of development still continue. There are two main reasons for this: 1. The term "religious" is becoming harder to define in any subject-matter sense. We are thinking of religion more as a spiritual aspect of experience as a whole than as something quite distinct from all other experience. The range of materials used is more and more extensive. The conviction grows that even those types of experience that are considered most secular have a religious phase when considered in relation to the spiritual aspirations of men. The recent publication of A Common Faith by John Dewey, the father of progressive educational theory in America, is an illustration and a confirmation of this trend. 2. Progressive educators are themselves thinking of education in more spiritual terms, while the religious educators are constantly using the principles and techniques of general education. Hence it seems artificial to separate religious education from general education when the latter is seen at its best.

Integration in the Local Field. A tendency, however, is reported toward greater integration of the work of the local church in terms of educational aims. This means, on the one hand, a unification of educational programs with worship and social service and, on the other hand, a closer alignment between church educational activities and other activities in the local community outside the church.

Coördination in the National Field. A notable recent development is the movement for closer coördination, national and regional, of agencies engaged in religious education—the International Council of Religious Education, the Federal Council of Churches, the Home Missions Councils, and the state and local federations of churches. The tendency is distinctly toward integration or actual amalgamation of the state and local agencies. Much is hoped for by church leaders from this movement. The concern for religious education of adults continues and the International Council has now brought out Book IV of the Curriculum Guide devoted to this subject.

The Religious Education Association. The Religious Education Association devoted its Annual Meeting in 1933 to consideration of the problems confronting the agencies of moral and religious education. The economic, political and international situations were reviewed and attention was given to the maintenance of morale and the development of personality in a time of social strain. In 1934 the Association focussed its attention more definitely on the economic and social crisis as affecting religious education. The Association began, in October, 1934, publication of Character, a popularly styled magazine devoted to character building and its social implications.

Education and Action. The tendency to see religious educational problems in terms of the socio-economic situation is one of the major characteristics of the present period. It is very apparent in the resolutions promulgated for educational purposes among adults by the Federal Council of Churches, by many of the national church bodies, and by the various youth agencies. Also, there is a distinct tendency to regard religious education—and this is true of general education as well—as a process inseparable from action. The old distinction between social education and social action is fading away. Educators are coming to believe that unless education roots in action it is ineffective. The National Conference of Jews and Christians has conducted seminars in leading educational institutions. It is sponsoring an independent Service Bureau for Education in Human Relations. A “pilgrimage tour” was conducted in 1934, during which a Protestant minister, a Catholic priest and a Jewish rabbi visited many cities and educational institutions holding meetings and conferences in the interest of better inter-faith relations.

Research. In the the field of research a number of important things have been done. The Institute of Social and Religious Research published its four-volume report on theological education, entitled Education of American Ministers. The Yale Studies have been continued, resulting in two important volumes: Church Schools of Today, by Hugh Hartshorne and E. V. Ehrhart and Standards and Trends in Religious Education, by Hugh Hartshorne, Helen R. Stearns and Willard E. Uphaus, both financed by the Institute and published by the Yale University Press.

The discontinuance during 1934 of the Institute of Social and Religious Research removes a major asset of religious education in this country. It is of the utmost importance that ways be found to continue the surveys, case studies, and other researches of high quality which the Institute has produced in such impressive number during the last thirteen years.

In addition to the research reports mentioned above the period under review has yielded a number of important books:

Teaching Religion Today, G. H. Betts (Abingdon Press).

New Vacation Church School, W. D. Blair (Harper and Bros.).

Religion and the Good Life, W. C. Bower (Abingdon Press).

New Era in Religious Education, A. H. MacLean (Beacon Press).

Christian Education in Your Church, H. C. Munro (Bethany Press).

Two Centuries of Student Christian Movements, C. P. Shedd (Association Press).

The Social Problems of Young People, S. A. Weston and S. R. Harlow (Abingdon Press).

CHURCH SOCIAL WORK IN 1934

WORTH M. TIPPY

(Executive Secretary, Federal Council's Department of the Church and Social Service.)

Denomination Social Reorganization. This was the outstanding feature of Protestant social work in 1934. The lead was taken by the Congregational-Christian Churches. The General Council, which met at Oberlin, Ohio, in June, 1934, transformed a social service commission which had acted for the churches since 1913, into the Council for Social Action. Authority was centralized and the Council was made one of the independent boards of the church, instead of, as in the past, a department of a board. The new Council was chartered by the churches as an agency for research, education and social action. Headquarters were established at 105 East 22d Street, New York. The initial staff consisted of six persons: a director, an industrial specialist, a researcher, a librarian for literature and information and a part-time secretary in the field of foreign relations. The Council itself had a distinguished personnel, composed mainly of younger men. Its major concern was the relation of the church to the reorganization of the social order.

Other Bodies. That a social transformation is taking place in Protestant Christianity is shown also by the fact that other denominations are moving in the same direction. The Northern Baptist Convention appointed a Commission on Christian Social Action in May, 1934. The Commission is to report to the National Convention in May, 1935, at Colorado Springs. The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. (Southern), set up a Permanent Committee on Social and Moral Welfare, last May, very much along the lines of the Northern Baptist Convention. The Committee has no power of action except to bring to the General Assembly specific recommendations. The Committee is studying program, organization and budgeting.

The Board of Missions of the Disciples of Christ at Indianapolis, which is a consolidated board of foreign and domestic missions, religious education, evangelism and social service, is working out a scheme of organization by which social service is to be made a coördinate department, properly financed, and carefully integrated with the other departments.

The Church Conference of Social Work. This Body, which was organized at Boston five years ago by the Federal Council's Department of the Church and Social Service, has steadily advanced. It met in 1934 at Kansas City and is one of the associate groups of the National Conference of Social Work. The meeting for 1935 will be held in Montreal, June 9-14. The Conference has coöperative relations with the Social Service Council of Canada. It is a part of a wider plan to correlate Protestant social work in communities, to lift standards of work, to train volunteers, and to relate the churches intelligently to private agencies and to the growing public welfare movement.

Church Social Workers. Outstanding in 1934 were: the launching of the Association of Church Social Workers, a professional society, largely autonomous; a movement among the more important church training schools to make them over into schools of social work as well as of religious education; and studies on the curricula of training schools, a curriculum for the training of volunteers, and a job analysis of church social workers. Headquarters, 105 East 22d Street, New York.

Temperance Education and Policy. Recognizing the confusion in public opinion and church opinion on temperance policy since the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, leaders of the churches and inter-church prohibition agencies held numerous conferences on policy during 1934. In June the Federal Council's Executive Committee requested the Department of the Church and Social Service to study the situation and bring in a report with recommendations to the biennial meeting at Dayton in December. Dr. H. Paul Douglass was secured and began a preliminary study in October. The study brought out the following important facts:

There is at present no single and invariable version of the moral ideal of temperance in the churches;

There is no convergence of judgment supporting prohibition or the immediate major policy of the nation;

There is substantial agreement on moral temperance education;

A shift of responsibility for temperance is taking place in the denominations from special boards of temperance, to boards of social welfare, and boards of education.

Decency in Motion Pictures.

The most spectacular social movement of 1934 among the churches was towards getting decency in motion pictures. Begun in May by the sensational drive of the Catholic Legion of Decency and a boycott of all theatres in Philadelphia it was joined in spontaneously by the Protestant forces and later by conferences of Jewish rabbis. Protestant organization was centered in the Federal Council's Department of the Church and Social Service, and in its Committee on Motion Pictures, which had been at work for two years. A conference of denominational officials was convened in New York in June. October 21, 1934, was set aside for discussion in the churches. A source book for pastors for use on that day was issued in an edition of 25,000 copies. A pledge to remain away from objectionable pictures was formulated and broadcasted to the churches. Spontaneous action followed throughout the country.

Motion Picture Appreciation.

As the year advanced the pledging continued, but attention has been gradually turned to a longer time program of education in motion picture appreciation, organization of better films councils in communities and creation of film estimate services to guide people in theatre attendance. The result of the decency movement has been marked improvement in the moral quality of films, and the organization of self-censorship at Hollywood in the form of the Production Code Administration. At the moment a concerted drive is on to secure abolition of the present system of block booking and blind selling of films. Block booking is doubtless on the way out.

Trained Chaplains for Federal Prisons. In October Federal Commissioner of Prisons, Hon. Sanford Bates, requested Father James O'Grady of Washington, and the writer, acting for their respective organizations, to assume responsibility for the selection and training of chaplains in Federal prisons. Under the plan agreed upon chaplains are to be a part of a staff of specialists—physician, psychiatrist, educator, social worker, librarian, chaplain,—to confer on the individual prisoner and his rehabilitation. The Federal Council created a special Committee on Prison Chaplains in its Department of Church and Social Service. Prisons are being studied by the Executive Secretary and the Chairman of the Committee. The National Council for the Clinical Training of Ministers, representing at present twenty theological seminaries, has been brought into coöperation.

The desire of Commissioner Bates is that religion shall be made a greater force in the recovery of the prisoner. Doubtless if the present experiment works successfully the plan will be adopted in state penal institutions.

THE CHURCHES AND ECONOMIC PROBLEMS

JAMES M. MYERS

(The author is industrial secretary of the Department of the Church and Social Service, Federal Council.)

The NRA. The interest of the churches in economic and labor problems during 1933-1934 has naturally centered around the program and results of the New Deal, and particularly of NRA. Many church pronouncements by denominations and by the Federal Council have commended heartily the announced purposes of the New Deal to effect economic planning with a view to emergency relief programs, and to restore employment, to establish minimum wages, maximum hours, abolition of child labor, to secure a more just distribution of wealth and income, thus providing an increased purchasing power to the masses, to guarantee to labor the right of organization and other social objectives in line with the social ideals of the churches.

Restricted Production. The 1934 Labor Sunday Message of the Federal Council, however, raised the question, among others, whether restricted production can be the "Christian answer to cries of hunger around the world" and whether "a system built about profits can yield an adequate development of personality." While substantial social gains have indeed been achieved in many areas, disquieting facts became apparent particularly with reference to the trend of distribution of wealth and income which (according to federal income tax figures for 1933) has been toward further concentration in the hands of the few. The Methodist Federation for Social Service in December, 1934, sharply challenged this and other results of the New Deal.

Strikes. Many people have found difficulty in understanding the reasons for the strikes which have swept the country in the past two years. The vast majority of strikes during the first months of the NRA were due to an effort by labor to defend its right to the wages and hours stipulated in the codes, or its right of collective bargaining which is sanctioned by the National Industrial Recovery

Act. That act has undoubtedly given an enormous stimulus to labor organization, but in great numbers of instances the right to organize has not been recognized in practice. Workers who took the lead in joining labor unions have been summarily discharged, thus precipitating widespread strikes in defense of collective bargaining. An additional cause of strikes lay in the fact that cost of living was advancing in some cases more rapidly than wages. The workers' margin above the subsistence level was so slight that they immediately felt the pinch of increased prices. The churches have long stood for the right of labor as well as employers to organize.

Bargaining Power. Under the NRA employers have been in effect organized one hundred per cent through trade associations, and in the code authorities, under government supervision. Even with the rapid increase of labor organization in many industries, probably not over twenty per cent of industrial workers as yet belong to unions. This great inequality of bargaining power has led some ministers to give active assistance to labor organization efforts. In some industrial sections parish houses have been made available for union meetings, and ministers have spoken at meetings in the interest of organization, citing the social ideals of the churches, giving encouragement and counsel. While the principal function of the average church in relation to industry is that of education as to basic principle and motive, stirring the conscience and molding public opinion—such activities have the effect of convincing the industrial workers of the sincerity of the churches' stand for the right of labor to organize. The Executive Committee of the Federal Council in June, 1934, reiterated in strong terms its belief not only in the right but in the social necessity of workers as well as employers to organize as a basis of constructive coöperation in industrial relations. Continued programs in unemployment relief have been carried on by great numbers of churches, as has the special project of relief and rehabilitation in the coal fields by the American Friends Service Committee with which the Federal Council is coöperating.

Social Legislation. Strong resolutions were passed, and increasingly active support given to proposals for social legislation by a growing number of denominations, by the Y. W. C. A., the Y. M. C. A., the Council of Women for Home Missions, the Bureau of Christian Social Relations of the Woman's Missionary Council of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and by the Federal Council. The child labor amendment and federal-state systems of social insurance to cover unemployment, illness and old age, were among the measures especially supported.

A number of denominations were in the process of reorganizing and strengthening their departments for social service, including the Northern Baptist, the Evangelical and Reformed, and notably the Congregationalists in their new National Council for Social Action, and a number of state and local councils of churches.

The Trend to the Left. While there has been a marked trend toward the left in the thinking of thousands of ministers and church members, there is also a noticeable reactionary trend among others in Protestant churches so that the issue is being more sharply drawn within the church as well as in society.

Progress in 1934. A landmark of industrial and international progress was set up in 1934 when the United States joined the International Labour Organization at Geneva. It is increasingly apparent that if America is to escape the fate of the other countries where labor has become estranged from the church and antagonistic to religion, it will be because our religious forces play a vital rôle in helping to secure social justice.

THE CHURCHES AND FAMILY LIFE—1933-1934

LELAND FOSTER WOOD

(Dr. Wood is secretary in the Department of Social Service of the Federal Council, in charge of matters having to do with family life.)

The General Family Situation. The year 1934 saw the beginning of an upward swing in the number of marriages and of births from the low levels of the depression during which the marriage rate had declined to 75% of normal. Reemployment for some, and better planned forms of assistance for others decreased the amount of acute suffering and want in families. The churches continued to give a large amount of direct help to their own members in need.

Family and Parent Education. The past two years have witnessed a significant growth of the movement for family and parent education in the churches. The special emphasis on Christ in the Life of the Home for 1934-35, adopted by the International Council of Religious Education and its coöperating denominations has created a heightened interest in Christian family life. New course materials have been prepared, and the Joint Committee on Family and Parent Education of the International Council under the leadership of Dr. B. S. Winchester, its chairman, and Dr. Harry C. Munro, its secretary, has projected a much more complete set of curriculum materials. The International Council, the Federal Council of Churches, and some of the denominations have put out promotional material for this emphasis.

Advanced Education. Universities, colleges and theological seminaries have increased their offerings of courses in the family and its relationships, and a number of significant new texts have appeared during the past two years. Among them Prof. E. R. Grove's book, Marriage, is indicative of the trend of development. The Children's Bureau in Washington and the voluntary parent education agencies continue to put out much helpful material, which is increasingly used in church groups.

Premarital Instruction. On April 10, 1933, the Federal Council of Churches issued a statement entitled Safeguarding Marriages. This received wide attention and has been followed by an increased pastoral interest in premarital instruction and in the follow-up of marriages. The Committee on Marriage and the Home has material to help in this work. Its secretary, Dr. L. Foster Wood, has held conferences on family life in leading cities and in smaller places in coöperation with local organizations, promoting the idea of better education for family life and conferring with pastors on the safeguarding of the marriages at which they officiate.

Birth Control. On the much debated question of legalization of contraceptive information, the General Assembly of the Protestant Episcopal Church took action on October 20, 1934, in favor of granting freedom to licensed physicians, hospitals and medical clinics to impart such information. The Roman Catholic Church and a part of the Protestant constituency continue their opposition, although the desirability of spacing children has been increasingly recognized in Roman Catholic circles. It is significant that dependence upon the so-called "safe periods" has been widely advocated among Catholics as an alternative to the use of contraceptives.

The Church Helping the Home. While definite statistics are not available, it is evident that an increasing number of ministers are preaching on marriage and family life; that these subjects command a larger place in the educational program of the churches and in church publications, and that efforts to help families in domestic difficulties have been more widespread and more carefully organized than in previous years.

In response to many requests from pastors for a treatment of the new adjustments of brides and grooms, whether physical, psychological or spiritual, a little book entitled, Foundations of Happiness in Marriage* has been prepared for ministers to present to brides and grooms. This book has already been adopted by the Adult Education Committee of the Presbyterian Board of Christian Education, and has received high commendation from religious and medical authorities.

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

WALTER W. VAN KIRK

(By the secretary of the Department of International Justice and Goodwill of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.)

The Churches and Peace. During the past two years an increasing number of religious bodies have gone on record as being utterly opposed to the butchery of humans on the battlefields. This movement is based on the conviction that the practice of war between nations is contrary to the teaching and practice of Jesus Christ.

The Program of Peace Action. The program which has been sponsored and which has sought the support of church people has been:

The negotiation of a multilateral treaty for the reduction of armaments; a multilateral treaty providing for the international control of the traffic in arms and munitions; participation by churches in the campaign for an investigation of the munitions industry in the U. S.; abolition of all compulsory military instruction in civil educational institutions; withholding of appropriations required for carrying out the naval program authorized in the Vinson Naval Bill; American membership in the World Court; negotiation of reciprocal agreements with other nations; repeal of the Exclusion Act of 1924 and admission of Orientals on the quota basis.

Armament Reduction. The churches protested against the enactment of the Vinson Naval Bill. There has been close coöperation with the World Disarmament Conference at Geneva.

War. A significant statement was prepared and issued in the early part of 1934 when the talk of war became a serious concern. It was called "A Message to Christians in All Lands" and was adopted by the executive committee of the Federal Council. It reads in part as follows:

"We believe that the churches of Christ around the world should with all possible dispatch say to their respective governments that they cannot and will not give their moral support to war as a method of settling international difficulties nor will they become a party to the mad race in armaments now in progress in so many parts of the world. It seems to us that in this hour it is the clear duty of Christians everywhere to declare their undivided allegiance to Him whose they are and whom they serve.

"We believe that the hour has come when all Christians should unite in urging the nations to make renewed effort to resolve existing international differences and misunderstandings on a peaceful basis. We cannot and will not believe that the peoples of the world desire that a relatively small number of persons shall precipitate an international crisis that would seem to make inevitable the resort to military violence. The vast majority of the peoples of the world desire to live in peace with one another. Let them say so and say so in such a way that their witness will be heard in the chancelleries of the nations."

Munitions. The churches, it is not too much to say, helped clear the way for the initiation of the munitions industry investigation. When the pressure came on the administration to end the hearings, the churches through the Federal Council urged that the hearings be continued.

Compulsory Military Drill. The opposition of the churches to compulsory military drill continued. The Federal Council was in session at Dayton, O., during the week when the Supreme Court handed down its decision in December, 1934, concerning military drill. It took action at once, in part as follows:

"We would point out to our constituent bodies that the Supreme Court has not ruled that military training in civil institutions must be compulsory. We note that the Court in its ruling on this question specifically stated that 'the privilege of the native-born conscientious objector to avoid bearing arms comes not from the constitution but from the Acts of Congress.' In the light of the Court's ruling it is clear that the American people, in part through the action of the proper legislative bodies and in part through the action of the governing bodies of educational institutions in question may provide that military training be placed upon a voluntary basis."

Peace Crusade. Local conference on Churches and World Peace have been held in many cities throughout the country. A national conference was held at Dayton, O., in December, 1934. It was attended by some two hundred prominent churchmen representing forty-three denominations and allied religious organizations.

Armistice Sunday. More than thirty thousand copies of an armistice pamphlet, A Program of Peace Action for the Churches of Christ in America, were placed in the hands of leading clergymen and laymen throughout the country in preparation for the observance of Armistice Sunday in November, 1934.

Peace Education. The task of cultivating peace education among church members has been the definite responsibility of the Department of International Justice and Goodwill of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. It reaches over twenty million church members in the 23 religious bodies which cooperate in the Council. It works through the pastors of over a hundred thousand churches, the members of adult Bible classes, church forums, discussion groups, young people's organizations, the editors of the religious press and the executive secretaries of city and state councils of churches.

Materials. A pamphlet, Program Suggestions for World Peace, is regarded by church leaders as the most helpful and practical answer to the question, "What can we do about it?" Another pamphlet, Services of Worship for World Understanding and Peace, was used extensively by pastors and others in worship programs. At the request of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, a brochure was provided with the title, The Churches and World Peace, which has gone to peace leaders in the U. S. and other lands. Another larger pamphlet, Men Conquer Guns, dealt with armament reduction, traffic in arms, moral disarmament and like subjects. Mention should be made of the importance and the circulation of a sermon by Harry Emerson Fosdick, "The Unknown Soldier," and the issue of Fortune which contained an article, "Arms and the Men."

Children and Young People. More than 20,000 Friendship Folios were sent by American children to children in China and thousands of Friendship Picture Cards to boys and girls in France, Holland, Japan and the Philippine Islands. Hundreds of children in the grade and junior high schools of the country responded to an invitation to prepare essays on such themes as the League of Nations, the World Court and the Pact of Paris.

RACE RELATIONS

GEORGE EDMUND HAYNES

(This survey is by the secretary of the Department of Race Relations of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ.)

Race Relations Sunday. There was greater participation in the observance of Race Relations Sunday than ever before both in 1933 and in 1934. Denominational agencies, local churches, mission boards and civic and welfare groups coöperated in all parts of the country. Two outstanding radio speakers, Drs. Cadman and Poling, included the observance in their broadcasts over a nationwide hook-up over about 91 stations and more than 24 additional local stations put a special program on the air.

Anti-lynching Bill. The Costigan-Wagner Bill against lynching now before the 74th Congress has the endorsement of some of the principal Protestant denominations, as the most useful step toward suppressing this national evil by giving the Federal government power to punish lynchers and state officers who neglect the protection of prisoners against mobs.

The Scottsboro Case. Seven Negro boys were convicted at Scottsboro, Ala., April 9, 1931, for the alleged raping of two white girls on a freight train. They were convicted but the conviction was reversed by the U. S. Supreme Court, Nov. 7, 1932. One of the defendants, Heywood Patterson, was retried and convicted. The verdict was set aside but he was retried and found guilty, and another defendant, Clarence Norris, was also convicted. The sentences, on appeal to the Alabama Supreme Court were confirmed. On appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court, both cases were accepted for review on Jan. 7, 1935.

A New Scottsboro Defense. Following the arrest of two representatives of the International Labor Defense group on charges of spiriting away a witness, the lawyer who had tried the cases in behalf of the defendants, Samuel S. Leibowitz, in the fall of 1934, and a group of churchmen, lay and clerical, formed the American Scottsboro Committee, Inc., to provide adequate legal defense for the Negro boys, separate from the International Labor Defense and allied radical groups on the ground that these groups and their tactics were a handicap to the defendants in obtaining justice.

Church Attitudes. A study was made by the Institute of Religious and Social Research of the historical attitudes of church bodies toward Negro slavery and the treatment of Negroes in America in the field of religious fellowship. It was prepared by Trevor Bowen and Ira De A. Reid, and published under the title, Divine White Right.

The Depression and the Negro. The depths of the depression have greatly affected race relations. Negroes and other minority racial groups, especially those of foreign birth, formed a larger proportion of the unemployed because racial discrimination added its weight to other forces causing unemployment. These minority groups, especially Negroes, had difficulties in some communities in getting equitable treatment. On the other hand taking the nation as a whole, according to the FERA, the proportion of Negroes thrown on relief was about twice as large as their proportion of the population. In many Southern states and communities, Negroes participated very little in the administration and personnel of relief.

Recovery and the Negro. One of the most significant developments in an effort to prevent and to correct discriminations was the formation of the Joint Committee on National Recovery. This committee represents 24 national, interracial and racial organizations and is headed by the executive secretary of the Department of Race Relations of the Federal Council. This committee prepared briefs and had them presented by strong representatives at all the principal public hearings on NRA codes affecting Negro workers; pressed policies of nonsegregation and other non-discriminatory principles on the administration; made investigations of complaints and urged corrections of abuses complained of; made studies of labor conditions in the tobacco industry and cotton textile areas where Negroes are largely employed; and presented arguments and facts against the granting of exemptions to provisions of the codes.

Agricultural Conditions. A survey was made by two Federal Council departments of cotton growing communities in Arkansas and an interracial conference of leaders in that state was held which endorsed the report and fostered further study and plans for the remedy of the conditions disclosed. In the Acreage Reduction Program under the AAA sharetenants and croppers in the cotton areas received less proportion of the benefits from government payments for land left out of cultivation than similar contracts in tobacco, corn and hog or wheat areas. Expert estimates were that most cotton tenant farmers, except "managing share-tenants," and cash renters comprising a minority received payment in the ratio of about eight to one. This affected Negro cotton farmers because more than two-thirds of all Negro farmers are sharetenants and sharecroppers.

Education. A significant national conference was held in May (9-12), 1934, under the auspices of the Office of Education, U. S. Dept. of the Interior, on the fundamental problems in the education of Negroes. The conference adopted a series of fundamental objectives and ideals in the fields of home life, vocations, citizenship, recreation and leisure, health, character, availability of education, teachers and teaching.

Miscellaneous. The famous Negro play, Green Pastures, continued its success, entering on its sixth year in February, 1935. All stage records for continuous appearance have been broken by the principal actor, Richard B. Harrison. A number of important books by and about Negroes appeared: Along This Way, an autobiography by James Weldon Johnson; Race Relations, W. D. Weatherford and Charles S. Johnson, a sociologic textbook; and Divine White Right, by Trevor Bowen and Ira De A. Reid, already noted. On Nov. 30, 1934, the first Negro folk-symphony, composed and directed by a Negro, William L. Dawson, was presented in New York City before an enthusiastic audience of music-lovers, most of whom were white. A trend of Negroes toward the Democratic party in certain Northern states and communities continued. Two Negroes were elected to the State Assembly in New York as Democrats, and the lone Negro Congressman in Washington, a Republican, was defeated by a Democratic Negro, from Chicago.

RELIGIOUS RADIO

FRANK C. GOODMAN

(Executive Secretary of the Department of Radio of the Federal Council.)

Field. It is computed that there were eighteen million five hundred thousand homes and institutions equipped with receiving sets in the United States in 1934. The potential audience was sixty million people.

Publicity. The executive heads of radio companies from coast to coast gave their support to the services broadcast directly under the auspices of the Federal Council radio department and also to other religious programs such as the Church of the Air series of the Columbia Broadcasting Company. Through the medium of 2,200 daily and weekly newspapers, radio publications, magazines and news syndicates the radio ministry was brought to the notice of a great number of others beside church members.

Response. There was a demand for 130,000 copies of radio addresses as sponsored on the National Broadcasting System alone. The cost of the programs and their administration was largely met by committees of laymen organized for each program. Their gifts, in addition to those received from the radio audience amounted to about $44,000 for the year 1934.

Program. The following is the full program sponsored by the radio department and presented over the National networks during the year 1934:

THROUGHOUT THE YEAR

Midweek Hymn Sing: Tuesdays, 6:15 to 6:30 p.m. Arthur Billings Hunt. WEAFF and network.

Morning Devotions: Weekdays, 8:00 to 8:15 a.m. Various clergymen. WJZ, etc.

THE INTERNATIONAL RELIGIOUS FIELD

HENRY SMITH LEIPER

(The author is secretary of the Department of Relations with Churches Abroad of the Federal Council.)

The Universal Christian Council, 1933. The Executive Committee of the Universal Christian Council met at Novi Sad, Yugoslavia, as the guests of Bishop Irenaeus of the Eastern Orthodox Church in his ecclesiastical palace, September 9-12, 1933. Due to the critical situation in Germany, one of the chief concerns of the meeting was the relationship between the new German Church and the rest of the non-Roman Christian world. The executives of the Council were authorized to conduct negotiations with the Reich Church in the effort to bring to bear upon the German situation the consensus of the Christian world and to express the distress and anxiety everywhere felt for the disabilities caused to members of the body of Christ through the emergence of modern paganism in Germany's state revolution.

The 1934 Fano Council. The Council itself, made up as it is of one hundred members, met in Fano, Denmark, August 24, 30, 1934, under the auspices of the Danish Lutheran churches. A great festival service was held at the cathedral in Ribe on the mainland and a very distinguished company of churchmen representing practically all the great communions dealt courageously with the problems of the Church and State in a session, the outcome of which was a statement destined to become historical as formulating the mind of the Church with respect to events in the German Church. (See Minutes of the U. C. C., Fano meeting, pages 50-51.) Although the German delegation protested against the adoption of this resolution, the delegation did not leave the conference and it did procure the publication of the statement in Germany where it served mightily to strengthen those who have been resisting state domination of the Church.

Easter Stabilization. The Council likewise accepted recommendations for the stabilization of Easter and looked with favor upon the proposed reform of the calendar, since it would bring the Eastern and Western church world into a conformity now lacking with respect to the great Christian festivals.

Youth Conference. Simultaneously with the meeting of the Universal Christian Council and the World Alliance for International Friendship a Youth Conference was held at Fano which brought together the leaders of Christian youth mainly from the Continent of Europe.

Leadership and Plans. The definite decision was reached to hold a world conference on "The Church, the State, and the Community" in 1937, probably in Switzerland, near the date of the Lausanne Faith and Order Conference in the same summer. For the first time a Bishop of the Orthodox Church was elected as active Chairman of the Universal Christian Council. Archbishop Germanos, who represents the Ecumenical Patriarch in London, succeeds the Bishop of Chichester in that high office.

Contacts with the German Situation. In connection with the great emergency in German Protestantism, the churches of America, acting collectively through the Department of Relations with Churches Abroad of the Federal Council, have kept in close and sympathetic touch with their German brethren. Visits to Germany for purposes of consultation and study of the situation have been made by Dr. Cadman; Dr. Cavert, General Secretary of the Federal Council; Dr. William Adams Brown, Chairman of the Administrative Committee of the Universal Christian Council; Dr. Keller, acting for the American churches; and Dr. Leiper. Dr. Charles S. Macfarland, General Secretary Emeritus of the Federal Council, likewise made a very careful study and report. Every effort has been made to bring to the attention of the Chancellor and other officials of the government the seriousness of the situation created by the demands made upon the churches, and it has been made abundantly clear that the approach of the churches was a friendly one, without political bias, directed solely at the preservation of Christian liberty of conscience and of church autonomy in the Third Reich. Close relations have been established with the leaders of the Confessional Church who have expressed great gratification over the evidences given of fraternal and sympathetic support coming from the churches of America. Seventeen bodies of Lutherans meeting in Savannah, Georgia, in the month of November, 1934, went further than any other church group thus far in pleading the case of German Protestantism before Chancellor Hitler himself.

The Exodus of 1929. The Central Bureau for Relief was instrumental in transferring the last of the Russian Christian Refugees from Harbin, Manchukuo, to Brazil, in 1933-1934. This is the last chapter of the great "Exodus of 1929" when thousands of families left Soviet Russia because of the Five-Year Plan to liquidate Christianity. Late in 1934 the Bureau was faced with another refugee situation, that of the 17,000 Hungarians who were expelled from Yugoslavia shortly before Christmas. The effort to ameliorate the lot of these exiles, as also that of the Jewish-Christian refugees from Germany, is still in process.

Relief Work. In 1933 the International Committee of the Central Bureau met in Geneva, where its central office is located. This gathering was noteworthy for the consummation of the "Joint Committee of Agencies Interested in Russian Christian Relief," now to be further complemented by its affiliation on a friendly, coöperative basis with Cardinal Innitzer's Committee for the Aid of Religious Groups in Russia, including not only Christians but Jews and eventually Moslems as well. The 1934 meeting was held in Edinburgh—the first time that the International Committee met elsewhere than on the continent. It was a most representative conference and received considerable attention on the part of the civil government and press of Scotland, as well as of the Church of Scotland and the Presbyterian Alliance. In commemoration of the first annual meeting following the inauguration of the active work of the Bureau in 1923, a general survey of religious conditions in all the continental countries was presented.

Seminar. Study conferences of a seminar character in which American churchmen have shared have been held during the biennium in Basle, Rengsdorf, and Paris. These three conferences brought together leading minds of the churches to deal with such problems as unemployment, recovery, relations between Church and State, and Christian principles in the social order. In Geneva, in the summer of 1934, a Seminar under the auspices of the Universal Christian Council and the personal leadership of its Honorary Lecturer, Dr. Keller, brought together theological students and pastors from many countries for three weeks of intensive study. The faculty of theology of the University of Geneva has indicated its desire that this Seminar be continued in the future.

Disarmament. During the entire life of the Disarmament Conference at Geneva a very active joint committee representing the World Movements of the churches has been in touch with the Conference, serving as interpreter and information center in conjunction with the Christian International Press and Information Service set up by the Universal Christian Council and other ecumenical bodies. That the activity of this committee met with distinct approbation from Mr. Arthur Henderson and other members of the Disarmament Conference, has been indicated; and at least something has been done to offset the terrific propaganda on the part of those who seek to destroy all efforts for limitations or reduction of armaments.

Munitions Inquiry. Following the action of the American churches in support of the munitions investigation in the United States, a resolution was presented by the American Section at the above-mentioned meeting of the Universal Christian Council at Fanoë and a recommendation was made through the World Alliance that united church groups in every country seek similar investigation and control of the arms traffic. This is no mere paper resolution and practical efforts have been made already in a number of countries toward this end. Action specifically along this line has been taken by the united church forces of Great Britain, and a vigorous campaign is now under way under the leadership of Dr. P. T. R. Kirk, Secretary of the British Section of the Universal Christian Council.

FEDERAL COUNCIL OF THE CHURCHES OF CHRIST IN AMERICA

The Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America is a federation of twenty-three national communions with a total membership of more than twenty-four millions. It was organized in 1908, in order "more fully to manifest the essential oneness of the Christian Churches of America in Jesus Christ as their Divine Lord and Saviour." The Council is governed in accordance with a constitution officially adopted by the participating bodies. It provides for a biennial meeting of the Council as a whole, made up of approximately 300 delegated representatives named by the communions that are officially related to it. These meetings are, in effect, sessions of a central board of common strategy and planning. In the intervening periods, the Council is under the direction of an Executive Committee of approximately eighty members, likewise named by the constituent denominations. In determining the representation upon the Council, each denomination is entitled by the constitution to three members, with an additional member for every 100,000 of its communicants or major fraction thereof. On the Executive Committee, each denomination is entitled to two representatives, with an additional member for every 500,000 or major fraction of its communicants after the first 500,000.

Other interdenominational bodies which carry on activities in specialized fields of Christian service are related to the Federal Council through official representatives who participate in the meetings of the Executive Committee for purposes of consultation and advice. These agencies are: the Home Missions Council, the Council of Women for Home Missions, the International Council of Religious Education, the Council of Church Boards of Education, the American Bible Society, the Foreign Missions Conference of North America, the National Council of the Young Men's Christian Association, the National Board of the Young Women's Christian Associations, the United Stewardship Council of the United States and Canada, the National Council of Federated Church Women, the Student Volunteer Movement for Foreign Missions.

The work of the Council is carried on through eight major departments, as follows:

Department of Evangelism: Rev. William Hiram Foulkes, Chairman.

Department of Church and Social Service: Rev. Albert E. Day, Chairman.

Department of Race Relations: Rev. W. H. Jeragin, Chairman.

Department of International Justice and Goodwill: Miss Mary E. Woolley, Chairman.

Department of Relations with Churches Abroad: Rev. S. Parkes Cadman, Chairman.

Department of Religious Radio: Rev. Theodore F. Savage, Chairman.

Department of Research and Education: Rev. William Adams Brown, Chairman.

Field Department: Rev. H. Paul Douglass, Chairman.

There are also permanent standing committees on Worship and on Financial and Fiduciary Matters.

During the biennium, 1932-34, certain changes took place in the membership of the Council. The United Church of Canada became affiliated with the Council in 1933. The Reformed Church in the U. S. and the Evangelical Synod of North America, both of which had been constituent members of the Federal Council from the outset, united in a new body now known as the Evangelical and Reformed Church. The Free Baptist Churches, which have hitherto been listed as a separate denomination, are at their request no longer thus listed, since their merger with the Northern Baptist Convention is now regarded as complete.

The work of the Council is supported in part by contributions from the cooperating churches and in part by the gifts of Federal Council "Associates." Associates are Christian men and women who express their sympathy with the objectives of the Council and help to support its work. The operating budget of the Council for 1935 is approximately $222,000.

The last biennial meeting of the Council was held in Dayton, Ohio, December 4-7, 1934, at which time Dr. Ivan Lee Holt, of St. Louis, was elected President and Dr. George W. Richards, of Lancaster, Pa., Vice-President of the Council.

Local and state councils of churches are widely scattered across the country and, while each of these local or state units is autonomous, they maintain close cooperative relations with the Federal Council and by bringing the churches of their own communities into a more effective unity play a highly important part in furthering the objectives of the Federal Council. (See pp. 177-186.)

THE COOPERATIVE WORK OF PROTESTANT CHURCHES IN STATE, COUNTY AND CITY COUNCILS OR FEDERATIONS

ROY B. GUILD

(The author is associate general secretary of the Federal Council.)

City Coöperation. The council (or federation) of churches has become a well-established institution in most cities in the United States. Through it the Protestant churches function effectively in coöperation in religious education, evangelism, social service, the promotion of international, industrial and racial goodwill, publicity, and other activities of common concern. On January 1, 1935, there were 48 such councils with varying names, with headquarters and employed secretarial force. There were also in many cities councils depending on voluntary secretarial service.

State Coöperation. During the last three years there has been a most notable advance in state areas in coöperative Protestant organization. Continuous and serious work has been carried on in Massachusetts, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Ohio and California for years and in these states principles have been developed and plans put into operation which have given evidence of what can and should be done.

Coöperation in Education. State councils of religious education which succeeded state Sunday school associations have been in operation in most states and have been uniformly successful. They have for the most part been lay organizations dependent upon the support and direction of individuals. As religious education became a matter of more serious concern to the churches and was taken up by denominational groups, the cities began one by one to unify their programs making their one organization responsible for education and all their interchurch work.

Action. In February, 1933, the International Council of Religious Education recognized this situation and took an unequivocal stand for the principle that there should be one state interdenominational organization with full and adequate provision to secure the highest possible efficiency in the field of religious education. For three years the secretaries responsible for the field work of the Federal Council and the Home Missions Council had worked on the united program. The above action made it possible for the International Council in 1933 to join the other Councils in a unified approach to states.

Progress. Connecticut on its own initiative had formed the Connecticut Council of Churches and Religious Education in December, 1932, two months before the action of the International Council of Religious Education. The next month the Nebraska Council of Churches and Christian Education was formed through the combined efforts of the Council of Christian Education and the denominational secretaries and pastors. Then came a merger of councils in Massachusetts, New York, Illinois and California. Other mergers are in process. A report prepared by the field secretary of the International Council in the autumn of 1934 showed that mergers had been completed, were in process, or under serious consideration in the following seventeen states: Connecticut, Nebraska, New York, Massachusetts, Illinois, Wisconsin, Oregon, California, West Virginia, Michigan, Washington-Northern Idaho, Maine, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Kansas, Oklahoma, North Carolina.

OBJECTIVES OF A STATE COÖPERATIVE COUNCIL

1. To provide equality of religious opportunity for every church and community especially in rural areas, through a constructive program of comity, making interdenominational adjustments, if necessary.
2. To carry forward a balanced program of Christian education, relating it vitally to all departments of the Council having the following divisions of work: children, youth, adults, leadership training, vacation and week-day schools. The work of this department must find its expression in all other departments. It is basic to all other work. It is as comprehensive as the Council.
3. To promote evangelistic work of a constructive type adapted to the needs of individuals and communities; to have the evangelistic motive in all work.

4. To organize to create right social relations: industrial, racial, international; to develop Christian public sentiment and action based on facts relative to law making, law observance and public policy as concerns moral issues.
5. To secure publicity for the Christian message and service through pulpit, press and radio.
6. To provide the work of chaplains and visitation of those needing personal help in hospitals, prisons, and other public institutions.
7. To promote understanding and coöperation with other religious, educational, industrial, social, and character-forming groups in serving the communities of the state.

ACTIVITIES

1. To maintain a headquarters for administrative work, and as a clearing house for assembling and disbursing reliable information, especially concerning the best plans, materials and methods for the work of the churches.
2. To help in the organization and work of city and county councils of churches in which a program of work similar to the state program can be carried out.
3. To hold an annual convocation of pastors for interdenominational fellowship, inspiration, coöperative planning and mobilization of Christian opinion.
4. To coöperate with national interdenominational and other organizations such as the Federal Council of Churches, the International Council of Religious Education, the Home Missions Council, in common work.
5. To provide essential financial support by securing contributions from denominations, local churches, Sunday schools, and individuals. Financial participation and personal service insures interest. A wise budget, well administered, is essential to sustained interest.

THE EDITOR READS THE ADVERTISEMENTS

yearbook such as this, might well have a section devoted to a presentation of a multitude of aids required in the successful conduct of worship and of institutional religion. From the beginning of organized worship, there have been artificers in wood, metals, and fabrics, who have brought honor to their calling by the way in which they have foreseen and supplied the needs of worshipers and workers.

These workmen of old have their successors today whose painstaking thought and skillful execution is obscured in advertising pages or by the very subordinate place given their presentation of their art or craft in the final pages of a crowded book.

The editor dreams of some day when a definite section of a yearbook might be devoted to the interests other than commercial, of artists, technicians, publishers, business men, industries and organizations whose contribution to the equipment and inspiration of organized religion is conspicuous.

At the beginning of a directory of alert and qualified providers follows. There is a wide range of supplies offered those who have occasion to seek them. The directory prints in bold face type names and addresses of organizations which explain their product or their offering in greater detail in special advertisement.

It will be very helpful to the publishers of the YEARBOOK to have those who seek service from these advertisers, preface their inquiries with the source of their information—the YEARBOOK OF AMERICAN INDUSTRIES. Organizations to which inquiries frequently come for information are invited to keep this list available and to use it freely with confidence.

What the AMERICAN BIBLE SOCIETY means . . .

TO THE MISSIONARY ENTERPRISE:

"Pass it on"

Often prepares the way for the missionary by the distribution of the Scriptures prior to his arrival. Makes the Scriptures available for the missionary's use in his work of evangelization. Gives constant attention to translating the Good News into additional languages and dialects. Aids and supplements all home mission agencies by distributing the Scriptures throughout America both to the alien and the native born. Send for booklet, "The What, Where, and Why of the American Bible Society."

TO THE LOCAL CHURCH:

Promotes Universal Bible Sunday annually, thereby calling the attention of church-going people to the importance of the Bible. Provides the Scriptures in every form required by a congregation. Prepares material for young people's organizations and furnishes Sunday Schools and church groups with leaflets on the Bible.

TO THE PASTOR:

Publishes Hebrew and Greek Scriptures for study use. Provides stereopticon lectures on Bible Work. Issues helpful material for use on Universal Bible Sunday. Publishes the Scriptures in forms for unusual parish needs. Furnishes posters and leaflets for lectures and addresses. Send for booklet, "The American Bible Society and the Pastor."

TO THE BLIND:

Publishes embossed Scriptures in Braille and other systems for the blind and in large print for persons with failing eyesight. Send for booklet, "Scriptures for the Blind."

TO THE DONOR:

Conducts a safe and satisfactory annuity plan paying from 4% to 9% to persons interested in giving but requiring some return from their money during their lifetime.

Send for booklet, "A Gift That Lives."

A CHRISTIAN YEAR

GEORGE P. HEDLEY has written a series of meditations, one for each week in the year, which finds living meaning in each of our Christian days. The volume is excellent to use as a handbook for a year of preaching, an outline for study groups, or a personal guide to Christian living. $2.00

You Can Master Life

JAMES GORDON GILKEY, whose books and sermons have helped thousands, shows you in a fascinating and practical way how you can master life by sanely tackling your everyday personal problems. Typical chapter headings are: Conquering the Sense of Insignificance, Breaking the Grip of Worry, The Secret of Getting a Lot Done. Only $1.75

The Mediator

EMIL BRUNNER'S masterpiece, a powerful defence of the central Christian doctrines, has been hailed as a monumental achievement. Rev. Joseph Fort Newton says of it: "I cannot recall a greater book of theology written in my generation." $6.50

The Revolt Against Mechanism

L. P. JACKS sees, today, a vast insurgence of creative spirit against the bonds in which mechanism would confine it. In this prophetic, illuminating, constructive book are ideas for sermons, provocative arguments for discussion, challenging conclusions on a subject which is vital today. $1.00

The Beginnings of Our Religion

This study of the origins of Christianity forms a different and inexpensive text for older students in Sunday schools. The distinguished authors are Fleming James, Charles B. Hedrick, Burton Scott Easton, and Frederick C. Grant. $1.00

American Sunday-School Union

Organized under its present name in 1824

As the oldest and largest Sunday School organization serving the otherwise unreached of rural America, the American Sunday-School Union provides through the establishment of Union Sunday Schools, and the distribution of literature, thousands of communities with their only opportunity for spiritual development.

The Charter of the Society clearly indicates its field of labor, in the following words:

1. "To establish and maintain Sunday Schools, and
2. To publish and circulate moral and religious publications."

At the present time approximately one hundred and sixty full-time Missionaries are organizing and supervising Union Sunday Schools, conducting revival and prayer meetings, providing leadership for Daily Vacation Bible Schools, ministering to the needy, sick and shut-in, and distributing the Holy Bible and Sunday School lesson helps, in communities where there is no other organized Christian work.

A complete line of lesson helps based on the Uniform Lessons is published, especially prepared to meet rural conditions. Catalog of our publications and Sunday School supplies will gladly be sent upon request.

The American Sunday-School Union is dependent upon the free will gifts of those interested in this work, and the receipt of legacies.

---

Our Annuity Agreements provide the beneficiary with an income certain and generous during his lifetime, and offer Christians an opportunity to support the work of our Society. Send for our booklet—"An Investment in Christianizing Rural America."
